Anniversary Of U. S. Grant

Since, from the time of Christ until now, the world has known less than 500 days of peace, all months have dates of importance, of significance.

In a time when the Southern politicians of the more rabid, witless number, are trying to draw leadership from the past, let us take some facts from the alternately bleak and sunlit pages of history.

In February, 1864, Gen. U. S. Grant sent in a report. He was not a garrulous man. He was up against politics. We have persons today who deplore military control. We all fear it. We all are willing to oppose it. But, the facts are, that complete civilian control in war can be worse than complete military control. Note the implications, of February, 1864, in the lean language of U. S. Grant, the new commander in chief of all the armies of the United States Army:

"The Union armies were now divided into 19 departments, though four of them in the West had been divided into a single military division. The Army of the Potomac was a separate command. There were 17 district commanders . . . I determined to stop this. . . ."

So wrote Grant.

Three Years

Three years of bloody war had been fought.

On both sides of the border things were the same.

Why did not Lee defeat him? There are many reasons of manpower, supply, transportation and equipment, and command.

Why, then? Why, in February, 1864, when the decisions were being made?

It is simple. Let Grant say it:

"I regarded the Army of the Potomac as the center, and all west to Memphis . . . and north of it as the right wing; the army of the James, under General Butler, as the left wing, and all other troops south as a force in the rear of the enemy. . . . In this way 10,000 men were added to the Army of the James alone. . . . I arranged for simultaneous movements along the line. . . . Sherman was to move from Chattanooga, Johnston's army and Atlanta being his objectives. . . ."

It worked. The greatest Confederate general (in the estimation of the troops) was against Sherman — Joe Johnston. The Confederates did not at that time think of Lee as a commander. But, even had they done so, Johnston was high in their esteem. "I loved General Lee," said General Hill, "but I never wanted to put my arms around him the way I did General Johnston."

In the spring, when the dogwood bloomed, General Grant said, "Forward."

Muddy Roads

The roads were muddy. His troopers moved along them, swearing, fighting, dying, repairing rail lines, waiting—

Three years had passed. The last chips were down. Grant was commander of almost 30 units. Lee was yet commander of one unit, with Braxton Bragg, Jefferson Davis, and the Richmond group stubborn and unwilling to admit error—a human trait, but sometimes a fatal one—trying to drive from the back seat.

Really, the end was inevitable. A lot of men knew it. Read the letters of the troops after Atlanta. They tell it. "We are beat," they say. "But they will not let it be." . . . "It is all over, but Jeff is too proud. . . . He wants a lot of us to be killed to justify his vanity." . . . "Well, if you've got to die, it is better to die for Joe Johnston — and not Hood . . . but Hood commands."

Grant was a lieutenant general in 1864 and, as such, given full command. He did not stay in Washington — he went into the field. He accompanied Meade in the first test with Lee, in which Lee was shattered. Grant had all the advantages. He took the initiative. General Lee was defending known terrain. It was well adapted to defense. Riddled by desertions, sickness, lack of equipment, the hard core of his army fought to the end. That lasted another year and is a magnificent tribute to them as men and patriots.

But this is the anniversary of Grant's taking the command — and of 1864 — and of history.

President Asks Billion For Jobless

By STANLEY MEISLER

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy asked for billion-dollar action on his anti-recession proposals Monday. He sent Congress two bills, one to extend unemployment benefits, the other to help children whose fathers are out of work.

The two bills would provide more than $1.2 billion of assistance to the unemployed.

A third bill, calling for a boost in the minimum wage, will reach Congress Tuesday.

CONTINUES BENEFITS

The most expensive bill in the package was the one on unemployment benefits. It temporarily would continue or reinstate payments to those who have exhausted all their benefits and still have no job.

Jobless pay extension would aid nearly 13,000 Georgians now. Page 31.

Kennedy estimated this bill would provide $950 million for three million workers.

His second bill would authorize temporary help to needy children whose fathers are unemployed. An estimate of the cost: $305 million for the 15 months of its operation.

SAYS NEED CLEAR

"The need for prompt enactment of this legislation is clear," Kennedy said in a letter that accompanied the two bills.

The letter was sent to House Speaker Sam Rayburn, D-Tex., and Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson, who presides over the Senate.

The White House said the minimum wage bill would include a formula for raising the floor to $1.15 an hour immediately and to $1.25 within two years. The present minimum is $1 an hour.

None of the bills is a surprise. Kennedy discussed all three in his special economic message to Congress last week.

In his letter Monday, Kennedy said:

"Unemployment compensation provides unemployed workers with necessary purchasing power. When this compensation is exhausted, the purchasing power ceases. This has a serious impact not only on the worker and his family, but on the economic health of the entire economy."

To alleviate this, Kennedy proposed that benefits be extended for a period equal to one-half the present duration provided by the various states. In no case would

109 from Atlanta Safe as Airliner Skids Into Mud

DALLAS, Tex. (UPI)—A Delta Airlines DC8 jet plane skidded off a rain and sleet-slicked runway at Dallas' Love Field Monday night and came to rest in the mud but none of the 102 passengers and seven crew members aboard was hurt.

The jet was en route from Atlanta to Fort Worth but was diverted to Love Field 30 miles to the east because of heavy snow in the air.

The flight, No. 921, was part of an interchange with American Airlines, with Los Angeles connections.

Rains Expected to End Tomorrow But Threat of New Storm Stays

Continued rain and cool weather are in store for Atlanta and north Georgia for a day or two and slightly colder weather is expected later on in the week.

The forecaster at the Atlanta Airport says the rains should be slightly heavier on Tuesday than on Monday but should end late Tuesday night or Wednesday morning.

Temperatures for Tuesday should run to highs of about 38 to 44 in the northern part of the state and 44 to 54 in the south. The lows expected for Wednesday morning: 32 to 36 in the north and 36 to 42 in the south.

In Atlanta a low of 34 and a high of 40 are expected for Tuesday with a low Wednesday morning of 34 and a high Wednesday of 42. Extremes Monday were 33 and 38.

Though no ice is expected for the latter part of the week, the weatherman says it is possible that storms will reoccur.

No Missile Gap, Pentagon Believes

By JOHN SCALI

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Kennedy administration's military high command has tentatively concluded there is no missile gap favoring the Soviet Union at the present time.

This view, based on a swift but careful investigation, coincides with President Dwight D. Eisenhower's farewell comment that the much feared missile gap "shows every sign of being" a fiction.

Even more important, the new Pentagon civilian chiefs, led by Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara, are convinced there is no "destruction gap" which will imperil U. S. security in the months ahead.

In other words, they believe this country's military punch at present is strong enough to wreak as much damage on the Soviet Union as the Soviets could inflict on the United States in a surprise attack.

These tentative conclusions have emerged from a top-to-bottom review of strategy, defense weapons and policy which Kennedy has ordered as a prelude to strengthening American defenses.

The fresh comparison with Soviet military might does not rule out a Defense Department decision to seek more and newer weapons.

McNamara has been instructed to have a sweeping reassessment of defense policy ready for the White House by the end of this month.

The odds appear strong that McNamara will recommend some changes, particularly to add muscle to American ability to wage

7 Jailed In Electric Trust Case

PHILADELPHIA (AP) —Seven executives of giant electric companies — described as "organization" men by the judge — were sentenced to 30-day jail terms Monday for federal antitrust violations.

The jail terms — a rarity in antitrust cases — were imposed along with fines totaling $827,500 against 21 companies and $109,000 against 36 individuals. A defense lawyer said individuals would pay their own fines.

In all, 32 corporations which make up virtually every large manufacturer of electrical equipment in the country and 48 of their executives were to appear before Judge J. Cullen Ganey in U.S. District Court. So many were involved that sentencing may not be completed before Wednesday. Companies include General Electric and Westinghouse, the nation's largest electrical firms.

Ganey, in a presentencing statement, called the indictments — for price fixing and bid rigging — "a shocking indictment of a vast segment of our economy."

Three GE executives — W. S. Ginn of Schenectady, N.Y., a vice president; Lewis J. Burger of Fort Wayne, Ind., former manager of the Switchgear Division, and George E. Burens of Philadelphia, a former vice president

Governor Backs $100 Raises but Panels Ask More

Tuition Bill Ruled Out Until July 1

By BRUCE GALPHIN

Georgia's new tuition grant law will not become effective until July 1, Atty. Gen. Eugene Cook said Monday.

Cook's unofficial ruling apparently removes any immediate pressure on school boards which are receiving requests for grants to children already in private schools.

The attorney general said he did not think the tuition law could be effective until funds are supplied by the new appropriations act which goes into effect July 1.

CITES ALTERNATIVE

The only way the grants-in-aid program could be put into operation now, Cook said, would be for Gov. Vandiver to make funds available from the surplus.

State Auditor B. E. Thrasher Jr. said a contingent section of the current appropriations act allows the governor to allocate as much as $5 million for grants. But Vandiver has not set aside any money for that use, Thrasher added.

Meanwhile Monday, State School Superintendent Claude Purcell said he thought local boards of education had authority under the new law to set some standards for schools where grants are to be used.

A LOCAL MATTER

The State Board of Education will not attempt to set any statewide standards, however, Purcell added.

The superintendent said local systems will be allocated more money if students living within their systems and already attending private schools apply for tuition grants.

The local system would still have to supply its own share (the amount above the state-supplied figure) of each grant, Purcell said.

Both Atlanta School Superintendent John Letson and Fulton Superintendent Paul West have asserted that grant-in-aid program will place severe strains on their budgets.

'TERRIBLE DRAIN'

In a letter to a Sandy Springs father Monday, West declared:

"I am gravely concerned about the question whether the Fulton County School System, or any local system in the State of Georgia, can afford and finance the terrible drain on its funds which will come about if applications of the kind which you have made are presented in large numbers. . . .

"I sincerely feel that the new law must be in some way amended in order to forestall possible bankruptcy of the public school system of Georgia."

The letter was sent to Richard E. Blanchard of 1511 South John-

WASHINGTON — Secretary of State Dean Rusk put the United States on record Monday as favoring a "clarified or strengthened" mandate for the United States in the Congo.

At his news conference the secretary said the U.S. was consulting Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold and member governments on a U.N. plan to restore peace to the Congo and "preserve the integrity of the nation."

While declining to express himself for or against release of the imprisoned former premier, Patrice Lumumba, Rusk emphasized the need for conciliation of all elements in the Congo.

One feature of a new U.N. plan for the Congo, he said, would be enforcement of international control of the flow of arms into the

Discovery Of Mistake Allows Rise

By RICHARD ASHWORTH

Appropriations committee members said Monday Gov. Vandiver's request for including a $100 teacher pay increase in his spending bill won't slow their search for funds for a more substantial teacher raise.

The governor issued a statement regarding the raise as the House and Senate committees spent a full day behind closed doors combing through fund requests in the governor's $406 million appropriations bill.

The committees heard from officials of the State Supreme Court, the Court of Appeals, the State Welfare Department, the Board of Corrections, the Department of Commerce and Secretary of State Ben W. Fortson Jr.

The committees are scheduled Tuesday to take up the education department—the budget section of which will have to be amended to provide for any teacher pay raise.

PURCELL CALLED

The committee has called State School Superintendent Claude Purcell as its first witness at 9:30 a.m. Tuesday.

That testimony will come as the State Board of Education meets to consider the shape the budget will take. A spokesman for the board said Monday it probably will take no official action on the pay raise question at its session.

Gov. Vandiver said funds for the $100 raise would come from a $4.5 million item for medical care to the aged which had been included in the regular section of the bill by a typing error. He said the item should have appeared in the contingent section.

MORE FOR SYSTEM

The governor also said he has asked Chairman Jack Ray of the House Appropriations Committee to increase by $1,600,000 the amount provided for the University System to make it conform with an amount previously agreed upon by him and by system officials.

This would leave $2,900,000 to be coupled with another $100,000 for the raise, Vandiver explained. In addition, $270,000 more should be

Macon Boy, 12, Survives 60-Foot Fall Into Icy Pond

Constitution State News Service

MACON—Richard Wayne Powell, 12, fell off a 60-foot cliff into 50 feet of water at the bottom of a rock quarry near here. The temperature was 36 degrees. Richard stayed in the water nearly two hours, but he survived to tell of the ordeal Monday.

Immediately after he fell, his 16-year-old brother, Henry Powell Jr., dropped a rope to Richard. Richard climbed five feet up the rope, slipped and fell back into the icy pond.

While his brother ran for help, Richard swam across the pond and managed to pull himself partially out of the water a second time. He clung to a ledge on the vertical side of the cliff. His feet remained in the water.

Darkness temporarily kept rescuers from finding Richard. One hour and 45 minutes later, Richards father, Henry Powell Sr., and other rescuers found the lad still clinging to the rocks.

He was bruised and cut, and his hands and feet were numb from the cold. His skin was beginning to turn blue in places.

The youth was taken to Macon hospital where he was treated for shock, exposure and multiple abrasions.

"When Richard was wheeled into the hospital early Monday, the first thing he said was 'I'd like a glass of water, please,'" his father related.

Powell said he was thankful that he had taught his son to swim.

"If he hadn't been able to swim or if we had waited another hour before reaching him, I'd hate to think what would've happened," Powell said.

Powell said his two sons and a neighbor's boy were "looking for 'possum" in the vicinity of the quarry when the incident occurred.

Jury Selected, Charges Read As Clinkscales Case Opens

JEFFERSON — Jury selections took up most of the first day of the disbarment proceedings here against Maylon B. Clinkscales, former judge of this superior court and now a practicing attorney in Commerce.

The court opened at 2 p.m. Monday and was adjourned at 5:45 p.m. until 9 a.m. Tuesday. The jury was locked up for the night.

The only other action before adjournment Monday was the reading of a petition asking for the former judge's disbarment. It was signed by a citizens' committee. In the disbarment proceedings these petitioners are known as relators.

By FRANK WELLS
Constitution Staff Writer

The petition was read to the jury by attorney Jack Davidson who also was one of the signers. It was answered, paragraph by paragraph, by one of Clinkscales' attorneys, Ray Merritt.

The petition charges "acts and deeds of willful, deceitful, unlawful, and immoral conduct" while Clinkscales held the post of superior court judge. Among other charges, it contained one saying that the judge used his powers to get Jackson County oil business for his distributorship in Commerce.

It also charges that Clinkscales took a course of action which nullified a county bond sale for the building of a hospital and a health center, and through personal negotiations sold bonds to the county and had a $2,000 fee paid to a Winder attorney, Marvin Pierce.

The petition also charges that the judge used his influence of office to "create an atmosphere and an impression" in the minds of parties before his court that attorney Pierce could more effectively serve their interests than any other attorney.

After each charge was read Clinkscales' attorney told the jury

Storm Halts Over Texas, Spares East

United Press International

A new storm got stuck over the Texas-Oklahoma panhandle Monday night, sparing the winter-weary Eastern Seaboard from another full-blown onslaught of ice and snow.

Snow warnings remained posted, however, for New York and other cities struggling to break loose from some of the heaviest snows in decades.

NEW STORM POSSIBLE

Weathermen also foresaw the possibility of a new eastward-driving snowstorm if a storm system in the western Gulf of Mexico gets together with a low pressure system over the Southwest.

The latest storm threatened new misery for the East when it plastered parts of Kansas with up to eight inches of snow and laid down an ice coating south of a line stretching east of Kansas City. The storm couldn't get moving, however, and was still pestering the panhandle country with moderate snows Monday night.

EAST UNEASY

Easterners still kept an uneasy eye on the weather map. Even though New York's forecast was for only light snows, Gothamites remembered that the prelude to the weekend near-blizzard was a forecast of just four inches.

The great cities of the Atlantic Seaboard were just beginning to dig out from snows which were blamed for more than 100 deaths. Many of the cities did not expect to recover fully until Wednesday.

Policy Boss Demoted By Kremlin

LONDON (UPI) — Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev's purge of high-ranking Communist party and government officials in reprisal for the Soviet Union's agricultural failure apparently has claimed one of Khrushchev's closest collaborators, observers said Monday.

The latest victim of the shakeup is Averki Aristov, a member of the powerful Soviet Presidium and deputy chairman of the policy making party bureau of the Russian Repubiic. Khrushchev is chairman of the bureau.

ENVOY TO POLAND

Moscow radio said Sunday that Aristov has been appointed Soviet ambassador to Poland. Soviet affairs experts said that while Warsaw is a relatively important post in Russia's diplomatic setup, the action amounted to a demotion for Aristov.

The appointment removes Aristov from the policy-making councils, even though he apparently has retained his post on the ruling presidium, as far as is known.

QUIETLY DROPPED

Aristov's star apparently began to wane some time ago when he quietly was dropped from the secretariat of the Communist party. However, he kept his post as deputy chairman of the Russian republic's party bureau—an important one since it involves party control over the republic's state machinery and the appointment and dismissal of senior party officials.

Aristov was replaced as deputy chairman by G. I. Voronov, considered one of Khrushchev's latest proteges. An expert on agricultural development, Voronov recently was made a candidate (alternate) member of the presidium.

A major shift of political leaders and officials was foreshadowed by Khrushchev's denunciations of Soviet agricultural programs at last month's meeting of the Communist party central committee in Moscow.

Kennedy to Build Up Exports To Bolster Sagging Dollar

By RICHARD E. MOONEY

Copyright 1961 by the New York Times Co.

WASHINGTON—President Kennedy made a few new proposals for solving the balance-of-payments problem Monday but placed primary reliance on expansion of exports and on strengthening the nation's domestic economy.

His new proposals, set forth in a balance-of-payments message to Congress, included a reduction —to $100—of the amount of foreign goods that an American tourist may bring home duty-free, and special arrangements for paying higher interest rates for foreign governmental holdings of dollars here.

The message had more new emphasis than new ideas. With the exception of repealing the order to cut back the number of military dependents overseas, President Kennedy is supporting and enlarging upon the various actions taken by President Eisenhower.

In the case of the requirement that countries receiving American aid spend most of the money here, the President promised "an even closer review." But he also indicated that the restriction would be temporary—"until reasonable over-all equilibrium has been achieved" in the balance of payments. Thereafter, the United States will discuss with other aid-giving countries "the desirability" of giving it without procurement strings, he said.

The new emphasis on export promotion included the expansion of the government's commercial offices overseas, in number, in manpower and in the things they do. Further, the President said, he is directing the export-import bank to devise a program to give exporters greater insurance against loss than the commercial-risk guarantees established last year under the Eisenhower administration.

Monday's message was prompted by the heavy deficit that the United States has had in its balance of international payments for the past three years. The past three years' deficits have ranged from $3,500,000,000 to $3,800,000,000.

Accompanying the deficits has been a heavy outflow of gold. The outflow in the past three years totaled $5,000,000,000, or almost half of the total payments deficit.

At the same time, however, foreign holdings of dollars—as bank deposits or short-term investments here—have increased by more than $6,000,000,000.

U.S.-Red Row Jolts Atomic Ban Talks

By M. S. HANDLER

(Copyright 1961 by the New York Times Co.)

VIENNA—According to information available Monday, the board of governors of the International Atomic Energy Agency concluded its winter session last week with the bitterest quarrel between United States and Soviet delegates since the organization was founded.

The winter session was described as the worst in the history of the agency, which was founded to further the application of atomic energy to peaceful purposes. The irreconcilable positions of the U.S. and Soviet governors on the questions of safeguards and inspection and the almost unbridled violence of the Soviet governor, Prof. Vasily S. Yeselyanov, were said not to bode well for the nuclear testing conference which is to resume in Geneva on March 21.

The draft plan for the establishment of safeguards against the diversion of atomic energy from peaceful to warlike purposes by countries receiving nuclear fuels and other assistance from the agency was the principal item of business of the governors' meeting.

The plan was supported by Adm. Paul F. Foster, the American governor, and 16 other governors while the Soviet governor, his Communist colleagues and governors representing uncommitted countries opposed the plan as an invasion of sovereignty.

Yemelyanov insisted the agency be headed by a triumvirate representing the capitalist, the Communist and the uncommitted neutral countries.

The Soviet governors suggestion led to an exchange of views that degenerated into a quarrel setting the stage for the battle over the safeguards draft.

The draft plan provides for plant inspection, regular reports and the periodic admission of inspectors.

Officials viewed the final adoption of the safeguards plan as the first step in a constructive direction.

APPOINTED
Rep. St. George

GOP Fills 3 Posts on Rules Panel

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Republican leaders filled three GOP vacancies on the House Rules Committee Monday with members who previously have opposed key measures of President Kennedy's liberal legislative programs.

The new GOP members of the committee are Reps. Katharine St. George of New York, H. Allen Smith of California and Elmer J. Hoffman of Illinois.

GOP leader Charles A. Halleck characterized all three as "good people." He refused to identify them as conservatives or liberals and said they were not chosen to obstruct Kennedy's program.

BY NARROW VOTE

Control of the committee was decided last week by a narrow House vote which enlarged the committee from 12 to 15 members. The action swung control of the committee from a conservative bloc of Republicans and Southern Democrats to administration forces led by speaker Sam Rayburn. Rayburn named two Democrats generally sympathetic to Kennedy's proposals.

The speaker had insisted on a showdown fight to assure floor consideration of the administration's economic welfare proposals in the fields of housing, school aid and depressed areas.

Under its old makeup, the committee was blamed for refusing to clear bills of the type favored by Kennedy.

Halleck, opposing enlargement of the committee, said Democrats were jumping to false conclusions about the committee's probable lineup and its possible efforts to block liberal bills.

VOTED AGAINST

Mrs. St. George, Hoffman and Smith last year all voted against final passage of school aid and depressed area bills similar to Kennedy's proposals. They all voted for a coalition-sponsored $1.15 minimum wage bill which fell short of the $1.25 minimum wage backed by Kennedy in the Senate.

The three new Republican members join Reps. Clarence J. Brown of Ohio and B. Carroll Reece of Tennessee as Republican on the committee.

Democratic holdovers include two conservative Southerners—chairman Howard W. Smith of Virginia and Rep. William M. Colmer of Mississippi along with Reps. Ray J. Madden of Indiana, James J. Delaney of New York, James W. Trimble of Arkansas, Homer Thornberry of Texas, Richard Bolling of Missouri and Thomas P. O'Neill Jr. of Massachusetts.

Selection of Reps. Carl Elliott of Alabama and B. F. Sisk of California as new Democratic members of the committee was ratified without discussion by the House Monday.

Advice to Solons: To Each His Own

While most Georgians would like to know what is going on behind the closed doors, they applaud generally the show of legislative independence by the House and Senate Appropriations Committees in their apparent determination to give a thorough study to every phase of the proposed appropriations bill.

The General Assembly thus is demonstrating that it already has ultimate power over state spending if it chooses to exercise it. This assembly has chosen to accept its responsibility and there should be no quarrel with all sincere efforts.

The announced intent of the appropriations committees to correct the imbalance that has grown up between the executive and legislative departments is commendable. But the temptation to excesses in encroaching upon the executive could defeat the best efforts of many who have worked long and hard at the problem. It could result in nothing being done in the way of basic reforms.

The "appropriations control" bills, H. R. 111-297 and H. B. 297, reflect the temptation. They go too far as written in granting administrative and executive powers to the General Assembly.

With state expenditures having grown far beyond the figure which the present budget-making procedure was set up to handle, the executive department does need strengthening in that field. And if the legislature is to exercise its proper responsibility, it needs to be better informed at all times about appropriations needs and the exact status of spending. It should serve, too, in a close advisory capacity in both fields.

Stronger budget-making procedures and fiscal controls within the executive department and a strengthened finance commission and legislative council to advise the legislature and the executive obviously are indicated.

It should be possible to find a solution to these basic problems without compromising the powers intended in the Constitution for the legislative and executive branches. We hope it still can be found at this session.

Henry Grady Extension Is Praiseworthy Change

Let us praise the State Mansion Sites Commission for extending the time limit on bids for leasing the Henry Grady Hotel property.

The original period—two weeks ending yesterday—gave too short a notice to prospective bidders. This valuable state property in midtown Atlanta deserves the unhurried handling which the commission has now decided to give it by scrapping the original deadline and promising more time for receiving bids next fall.

Reprisal Opportunities Running Out for Castro

Seizure by the Castro government of the aqueduct which supplies water to the U.S. naval base at Guantanamo could be a prelude to actually cutting off the supply. As a last desperate effort by Castro to retaliate against this country, it might even be attempted in the near future.

It is reassuring to note that the Navy has taken precautions for alternate water sources through tankers and a desalinization plant. It could survive such a reprisal, expensive and unnecessary as it may be.

The United States has made clear that it will not surrender the base and that if attacked it will be defended. Castro is unlikely to risk open conflict.

Continued reprisals and loud propaganda attacks on this country do indicate, according to informed sources, that Castro's regime is in serious trouble. Opposition is growing internally and the island's economy is near total collapse. Blasts against the United States to divert attention from the worsening situation are becoming routine.

But the harsh restrictive measures against the Cuban people, the increasing persecution of the Catholic Church and the destruction of the country's legal processes are building up an explosive situation that could end in bloody civil war. The Cubans themselves have it within their power to salvage the freedom and dignity which Castro and his Communist-dominated government have tried to destroy.

Sen. Russell Balances His Views of Kennedy

Sen. Richard B. Russell is "greatly disappointed" that the Kennedy administration has not moved with greater urgency to meet the depression on the farm.

He confesses concern that Mr. Kennedy chose to head the Department of Agriculture "men distinguished in politics and the law rather than in farming."

He predicts Mr. Kennedy will back a continuation of the land retirement practice, as recommended by his task force on agriculture. But if the funds for it are diverted from the conservation program, as the task force suggested, "I will vigorously oppose."

The senator likewise will "oppose with all vigor" the "repugnant proposals" on civil rights.

We list these points of dissent for a reason. The Georgia senator does not confuse specific points of opposition with a blanket obstructionism, as some Southern politicians still are doing under the new president.

For Sen. Russell went on to say, in his Monday speech, that he finds Mr. Kennedy to be "an attractive and able young president" who "eloquently stated" the American national resolve "in his inspiring inaugural address."

"Let there be no retreat from those high principles," Sen. Russell said.

"I intend to cooperate in every way that I conscientiously can to help make (the Kennedy administration) a success," he said.

It takes positives as well as negatives to make a balance. Some Southern "aginners" could well note the balance in Sen. Russell's position, then go and do likewise.

Let the Legislators Come Out of Bushes

The people are getting a brushoff from some men whose salaries they pay.

The members of the House and Senate Appropriations Committee decline to tell the public what is going on with the people's money.

It not only is improper but highly irritating to the taxpayer to see these committees preparing in secret to distribute millions of tax money.

Is it not the people's business? The people will pay. Are they content to be kept blind on what their tax money will buy?

It is rumored that the commitee wants to save some money by scrapping school attendance laws and doing away with the visiting teachers who check on truancy. This is about the unwisest way imaginable to save money, because it would be saved at the expense of heightened illiteracy; and the less education this state has, the less income it will have.

Shouldn't the people know it if such fool's gold is being minted in the secret huddle over at the Capitol? Or shall we wait until the bushes abruptly part and an effort is made to ram and rush an unwise act through the legislature?

Bushes are for the birds. Let the voters flush the politicians out into the open.

This Isn't the Way Buckhead Will Look

It may just be that models of buildings in parks destroy the little varieties of real life buildings, but somehow models of new neighborhoods always manage to look about as attractive and interesting and human as a penitentiary. It's the same with "artists' conceptions."

Some excellent examples of this may be found in "Buckhead," the report on and plan for that community by the City of Atlanta Planning Department. The report, itself, and the plan offered in it are both good ones. They include all the required ingredients of such endeavors: Necessary statistics, a philosophy ("Let's rebuild Buckhead for people!") and a clear statement of where the responsibility for executing the plan lies.

It is too solemn but it's not the first such plan that that could be said about and it's surely not the last. That's a minor flaw, however. The major flaw lies in the pictures—the photographs of scale models and drawings—that show what the end result of the plan will be.

If these pictures accurately show what Buckhead is going to look like in 1980, then they ought just to forget it. There is a sameness to every building. There is a dull, sterile, one-architect institutional quality. It looks like a world's fair. It looks like a 25th century company village. It looks functional, antiseptic, urbane, spacious, pretty and well-planned. It looks, in short, like hell.

No doubt this is not the way the planners want Buckhead to look in 1980. No doubt that is not the way it will look. No doubt the fault lies in reproducing something so complex as a city or neighborhood in so simple a form as a sketch or a cardboard model of that which is not yet built.

That must be it. Because if there is one thing we have all accepted by now it is that what makes cities "for people" are the variety, the exciting contrasts, the unexpected changes that meet your eye as you stroll or rush down city streets.—TED LIPPMAN.

Not That Florida Isn't Educational

The story is told of a man who applied for a job and drew the frown of the personnel director because his application showed he lacked an education.

"Didn't you finish high school?" the employer asked.

"No," replied our friend, "but I've been to Florida twice."

It wasn't enough. And it won't be enough for the generation of young Georgians now growing. Present unemployment studies show what happens to the man who lacks an education. He is the last to get work and the first to be laid off.

Yet Georgia sees a bill coming up in the legislature seriously proposing to scrap school attendance laws.

The result could only be a backslide. When the attendance laws were passed, only half of the children in Georgia were going to school 100 days a year. Now 90 per cent go 180 days. Even so, illiteracy plagues Georgia, and lack of finished schooling dulls the future of too many.

To go backward now would be foolhardy. Yet here in the legislature is a bill that conceivably could pass unless the people speak to their legislators about it while they are home during this current recess.

Some segregationists seem to feel repeal would bring a large Negro drop-out, and somehow reduce desegregation difficulties. The thinking is fuzzy and wrong. There is no assurance more Negroes than whites would drop out. The only certainty is that many children of both races would drop out and be equally injured for the rest of their lives, dragging the state and all of its communities backward with them.

The answer to the segregation arguments is present. It lies in the constitutional amendment, already approved by the legislature, guaranteeing freedom of association in the schools, forcing no child to go to a school he objects to attending, but providing him with alternate schooling. The schooling is the important thing, to Georgia and all of its children.

To strike down the attendance laws at this stage of history, when learning is the most important thing a man can leave to his child, would be in principle as foolish as Herod's massacre of all the innocent children in the hope of eliminating one. And the one escaped to Egypt, and survived to glorify mankind. If the politics of our mankind is to follow Herod instead of the child he hunted, then we haven't learned much about politics or Christ.

McNamara Taking Strong-Man Role?

WASHINGTON—Every Cabinet eventually develops a "strong man," who by some seemingly inevitable process becomes the big, clear voice next to that of the President himself. The Kennedy Cabinet is already turning up such a muscular figure, very early in the game though it is. Much less than a month in office, Robert S. McNamara, the new secretary of defense, is already comfortably astride the vast Pentagon.

McNamara is also — by that word-of-mouth report which informs the Washington world outside the cabinet room — being identified as "the comer in the Kennedy outfit."

He is the first of the new Cabinet to take a public step of the first magnitude. This is his urgent plan to build up our troop air transport so that by July — rather than four years later — jet troop carriers will be available to hurl our infantry upon any brushfire war anywhere.

But previously he had taken important private steps, too, which established in a matter of days two points other defense secretaries had not always been able to establish in years. One was that the civil authority — McNamara's — was to be unarguably final at the Pentagon. The other was that the generals and admirals were to stop disagreeing in public with the high policies laid down by their constitutional superiors, the civil authority.

The least "political" and far the least-known of the Cabinet when he came into it, he is rapidly becoming the best known of all. Already, his unpartisan, undoctrinaire attitude is serving him well, at the Capitol as in the administration.

As secretary of defense, he must deal in Congress with the two least-partisan committees it has, those on military affairs. And as it happens, both these committees are headed by conservative Democrats who will not be happy with every aspect of Mr. Kennedy's new frontier but are still very happy that an old frontier, national defense, is in the hands of McNamara's Band.

Now, to repeat, he is "not a politician." But in one of the central political skills, the handling of men, he may be more of a politician than he looks. For one of his first acts was to relieve an embarrassment of the chairmen of these two powerful congressional committees, Sen. Richard Russell and Rep. Carl Vinson, both of Georgia.

It had been incorrectly reported that Russell and Vinson, both highly reserved and highly correct old-school Southern gentlemen, had been "pressuring" President Kennedy to appoint the Georgia governor, Ernest Vandiver, to a Pentagon post. McNamara picked up his hat, went to the Capitol, and told Russell and Vinson he would be glad publicly to affirm that this was untrue.

They declined his offer, with thanks. But the fact he made it didn't exactly do him any harm anywhere in Congress.

Which Missiles Will Be the Best?

The firing of the Minuteman from Cape Canaveral may be, as mentioned here the other day, the best break the taxpayer has gotten so far in the highly costly business of making missiles. The success of the Minuteman, though, is going to set off one of the most agonized debates, and the hottest legislative battles, ever seen in the halls of Congress.

The Minuteman has been developed as a relatively cheap missile that can be armed, aimed and buried in a hole in the ground. There it will sit, ready to fire instantaneously, at the push of a button.

It was also visualized as a missile that could be put on a railroad car and hauled around over the country, pausing now and then to be placed in firing position, and then moving on before the Russians had time to find out exactly where it was and draw a bead on it. It can be handled that way, too, or it can be put on big trucks and hauled around, or on barges on the lakes and rivers.

It thus has two qualities—the capability for instantaneous counter attack when buried in its underground sites and invulnerability to attack while moving about in its train-borne configuration.

The cry is going to be raised, however, that if we place these missiles on sites within the continental limits or move them around on trains, they inevitably will draw down a terrible fire upon the United States if the Russians ever decide the time has come to attack.

It is far better, these people argue, to spend money on Polaris missiles, which, carried by submarines, will travel under the seas completely immune to attack. The missile carrying subs, it is pointed out, will not draw fire upon the United States, for they will be wandering far away from our shores.

This seems a valid argument. The proponents of the Minuteman argue, however, that if we have enough missiles, buried in their hard sites, and roaming about on trains, the Russians never will attack us. For they will know no matter how hard they might hit us, enough of our missiles would escape destruction to wipe them out in an instantaneous counter blow.

Also, the Minuteman's proponents argue, we have no guarantee that the Russians may not in time discover some way to detect our prowling submarines and knock them off one by one. Then, unless we struck a counter blow after the first submarine was sunk, we might be left helpless if we had no Minutemen on land.

Where wisdom lies, I do not know. But it will be a discussion to which we all might give thought when Congress starts trying to decide which of the two magnificent weapons systems should have the strongest support.

'Flynt and Other Georgia Representatives Should Resign and Run on Other Platform'

Cartersville—Rep. James Flynt of the fourth Congressional district should resign his place and run as a Republican and so should all the other Democrats from Georgia who voted with the Republicans on this test issue of the rules committee.

The country went Democratic. The President ran on a program that was approved by the people of the United States. The state of Georgia went Democratic and so did the districts of these seven men and one woman and they are bound by the dictates of their party and if they are unwilling to carry out its mandates, they should resign and run on the platform of a party that favors such measures.

Atlantan Opposes Tax Equalization Aid

Atlanta — I notice there are several so-called "tax equalization" bills up before the current legislature. One would lend money to counties for a re-assessment of taxable property virtually interest free and another would require all taxes on cars to be paid at the time a tag is purchased.

In my humble opinion, we don't need any more tax laws of any kind in Georgia. What we need is more economy in government. The present administration has made a start along that line but could do better. What right has the state to take our (taxpayers') money and lend it to the counties to study ways and means of taxing us further? And isn't there already a law on the books that says all ad valorem taxes on a car must be paid in a county before a tag is issued? All the State Revenue Department wants out of this bill is to get a list of all the cars that are privately owned in Georgia so they'll have a ready-made taxable list.

'How Are We Going To Attract Industry?'

Decatur — At 10:45 a.m. Jan. 23, Dr. Billy James Hargis, on his "Christian Crusade" program over WGUN, mentioned only TWO newspapers in the United States which were helping foster communism in America; namely, The Atlanta Constitution and The Washington Post.

Since the "Christian Crusade" programs are broadcast over many radio and television stations throughout the United States and several foreign nations, I highly resent his allegation — whether or not it is true.

How are we going to attract more industry to the "Greater Atlanta Area" when statements such as his are being broadcast throughout the United States and in other foreign nations as well?

'If Laos Falls, So Will All Southeast Asia'

Atlanta — I am greatly concerned about the Laotian situation. If Laos falls, all of Southeast Asia will probably fall. The Red armies have been winning victories in Laos and there has been circumstantial evidence of the participation of North Vietnamese troops. The United States has decided to wait until they have documentary evidence before they support Laos.

Well, by the time this letter goes to press there probably will be "documentary evidence" that there has not been a trace of North Vietnamese support for the Pathet Lao. The evidence will be submitted by the pro-Red government of Laos, which will have won because the United States did not support Phoumi Nosavan.

Chief item of intelligence in letter—Hanns and family now live in Amsterdam where he serves at the Consulate General in charge of economic affairs. Also by postal courier, an invitation from Atlanta Clark Howell Tyree to accompany him by an ion rocket on an interstellar tour with the first stop at the first star, Alfa-Centauri. Clark estimates it would take eight years to get to Alfa.

But he anticipates my answer to the bid would be, "By continuing present schedule, I can cover more territory, by fast dog team, and still have time to visit friends in Waycross."

THE SIGNS SAY: On auto showroom, "Trade Now—Small, Timid Salesman on Duty."—Reported by Ollie James, Cincinnati Enquirer.

Backward Parent Needs a Kicking

LONDON—It's about time that, in this cosseted age, we started a school for backward parents. We hear all about these teen-age morons but we don't hear so much about their half-baked parents who appear to be permanently arrested in adulthood at about the mental age of fifteen.

Take the case of St. Olave's School at Tower Bridge. They have run out of women cleaners. So the Headmaster, Dr. R. Carrington, very sensibly wrote to the parents in these terms: "Boys in their third year and upwards will be asked to do half an hour's sweeping and tidying twice a term." Note the time—one hour in three months. Dr. Carrington added: "They will not have to do heavy work—and they might regard it as social training." Could anything be more reasonable? Could anything be more logical?

Now listen to what Mr. Arthur Butterworth, who is the Assistant National Officer of the Union of Public Employes, has to say: "I thought children went to school to get an education, not to clean classrooms out. The school will have to face up to the increased cost of domestic cleaning and pay up. Girls' schools have domestic science courses, but cleaning is not a man's job. Anyway, it might be dangerous. If a boy got hurt the school could be responsible." Did you ever hear such unionized, the-world-owes-me-a-living claptrap?

The school is dirty and the kids are asked to do a little sweeping out which anyone who has ever lived in a home or a barrack-room knows is the first thing that must be done to preserve self-respect. What's wrong with asking children in a temporary emergency to help in keeping the place clean? I'll tell you, according to Mr. Butterworth. It impinges on a narrow, miserable concept of society in which you don't do a stroke to help yourself if you can pin it on the next guy. And as for the snivelling rubbish about a boy getting hurt using a brush and a dustpan, can you ask for a more wretched example of you-do-it-and-not-me? Not only is Mr. Butterworth plodding through his turgid union duties without much regard to common sense, but some of the parents of St. Olave's are also objecting that their children should be asked to help in a temporary emergency to keep the dust at bay.

These mothers and fathers are probably of the same infantile persuasion as the parents who send their offspring dressed in freakish attire and sue long-suffering teachers for excluding these luckless brats from their classrooms. What these uninstructed child-owners need is what they are the first to deny their whining descendants — giving them the most valuable, healthy corrective they will ever have in their lives—a kick, swipe or belt on their most deserving backsides.

What Is Dirty Enough To Say To a Friend Like This One?

PULSE OF THE PUBLIC—Or letters which could have been written to the editors: I want to thank you for printing my excellent editorial-type think piece concerning the Republican-caused recession. I called all my many friends and read it aloud to them on the phone until one hurt my feelings and I hung up on him. He said that it couldn't be too much wrong with a country where the two major topics of conversation were what kind of a diet you were on and how hard it is to find a parking place in downtown areas.

I could not think of anything dirty enough to tell him but you pay writers plenty to think of dirty remarks so how about replying to this turncoat of a Democrat who sees no depression days.

(Ed. Note: Dieting and finding a place to park in downtown areas has made us too weak to write.)

As a gentleman of the old school, or you might call me just an old-fashioned gent, I am wondering whatever became of the boarding house reach? The boarding house reach was an institution of that other institution, the boarding house. It happened only at meal times, when the boarders sat down to a table loaded with food — at about 35 cents per dinner. You would be sitting there, hungry, and just as you reached to grab some of that good food, somebody else was there ahead of you with a longer boarding house reach, and you ended up on the short end of things.

(Ed. Note: We don't know what happened to the boarding house reach. But nothing has to the short end of things; we are on it always.)

That piece in the paper about the poor dog being saved from the knives at Emory after he was picked up by the dogcatchers made me say but one thing: Thank God one poor dumb animal was saved from these butchers who kill in the name of science. (Ed. Note: No you're not. We were at that same cocktail party and we heard the bird.)

The Cigar Dropped, His Face Paled and His Voice Trembled

By HUNTER JAMES

The man had been knocking around the General Assembly for a dozen years without getting anywhere, and then one day he found himself at the head of a Standing Committee.

The members of his committee got to arguing among themselves one afternoon and someone suggested that he declare an executive session, so that all the outsiders would have to leave.

But the chairman couldn't bring himself to do it. His committee wasn't like the big committees — it didn't have anything to hide; and he didn't want to become a despot unless there was a reason for it.

He knew he ought to use his authority though; if he didn't, it would probably be taken away from him.

So one day he held up his hand and suddenly the committee was in executive session. Everything looked the same as before, but the reporters were gone now and the committeemen could speak frankly about important problems.

He had met the crisis, and now he knew what it was to exercise authority. The knowledge sank deep; it sat warmly in his breast.

But soon there was another crisis.

The door opened one morning and a reporter came in. The chairman had already declared an executive session and he didn't understand this intrusion.

The talk died down. The committeemen looked at one another and all looked at the chairman.

The cigar dropped from his mouth. His face went white, his hands limp.

His voice trembled but with an act of the will he controlled it. "This committee is in executive session."

And now everybody gave the intruder a threatening look. Someone else said, "Yeah, executive session!"

Other voices picked it up. "Executive session . . . executive session."

Everyone moved toward the intruder. But he didn't want to cause any trouble; he was already headed out the door.

The crisis was over. The chairman picked up his cigar and put it in his mouth. He sat down and looked at the man across the table.

"Your deal," he said.

This Is the Way I Would Talk If I Wanted To Destroy Religion

Did you ever wonder what you would do if you were Satan? If I were Satan and really wanted to succeed at the job, I would major on several things. First of all, I would convince people that the Christian religion impoverishes life: that it is a pretty dull affair. Staid and outmoded, at best it represents the left-overs of priestcrafts and superstitions. I would speak as an old cynic, "God is dead and let's get back to the business of running the world as we please." I would do my level best to scuff the polish and luster off of Christian faith. As a matter of fact, Satan has succeeded to a great extent in doing exactly this.

To millions the idea of God and religion excite little more than idle curiosity. To these same people the notion of God is so tarnished and tame, worn so slick by words that while serving as a nice tradition still it fails to infuse their lives with purpose.

What does it mean to have a God anyway? Sort of an apothecary to which one can rush when sick? A pantry when hungry? Or is God one on whom you can hang your heart? It is easy to see why some folks don't have much interest in God. They believe that He limits them, that to follow Him takes all the fun out of life. What a deception. God doesn't limit anyone; He releases life to a fuller range. No mental sterility is worse than that which thinks of God and religion as dull, lusterless pastime. To understand Jesus at all, one must imitate his wonderful life; life that is full, radiant, superlative. God intends that his followers be happy. Not that happiness is the ultimate end of living but it is an essential part of living.

One of the young lads in Principal Rainey's school said of his schoolmaster, "He must go to Heaven every night when he falls to sleep because he is so happy every day." What a compliment! That the waking hours should find Christians demonstrating a certain leverage of attitude and conduct is beyond dispute. Yes, if I were Satan, I'd try to take all the joy out of Christian religion, leaving it a naked, unsightly thing — denuded of grace, robbed of serenity and in their stead, asceticism, mortification, boredom and dull duty.

Then I would set another objective . . . if I were Satan. Everywhere I went I would say, "Take your religion with a grain of salt. Just have enough of it to be respectable, enough to pay your debts, to get along. But all this talk about walking the second mile, of turning the other cheek, loving the unlovely, giving to the needy. . . . ah, that is one for the books!"

That's the way I would talk —if I were Satan. Think it would succeed?

Dr. Letson's 'Educatorese' Keeps Parents off His Neck

There are, as some sage noted many years ago, more ways of killing a cat than choking him to death with hot butter. There are also more ways for a poor, beleaguered school superintendent to get a bunch of determined parents off his neck than to disconnect his telephone and arm his receptionist with a tommy gun. Dr. John Letson, the new and highly esteemed superintendent of Atlanta's public schools, has found the most effective method of all: He faces them in an auditorium, smiles genially, expresses a warm and tender concern for their problems and then mesmerizes them to a point of numbness with a brand of talk known far and wide as educatorese.

I saw this happen the other night at a meeting.

For eight months a lot of people who feel that extra smart children should get a break in the public schools have been calling in experts, gathering up statistics and reading everything they can get their hands on about the education of the so-called gifted child. Many of these are parents of genius or near-genius children. Many others are teachers in the public schools, college professors, doctors and just interested citizens. I started as an interested citizen and I became more interested as people like Dr. Joe Moore, head of the psychology department at Georgia Tech, and Dr. William Rottersman, the psychiatrist, appeared and spoke of brains as a natural resource more valuable to our nation, more worthy of development, than oil or uranium.

Gradually, a little at the time, this group has expanded to include about 600 citizens who have become convinced that Atlanta should have a special school for gifted children, of the kind now operating in more than a hundred other American cities. They knew that Atlanta had vocational schools for the unacademic minded, a school for the delinquent and even thanks to a massive civic effort, schools for physically handicapped and those with speech defects. Why not, they asked, a school where the gifted child, surrounded by other gifted children, could get the tougher courses, not suitable for the average or below-average pupil, and move along at an accelerated pace?

Dr. Letson shattered their hopes the other night. He said there is "no greater crime than neglect of ability" but he is pinning his hopes for challenging and stimulating (two good educator words) that ability on the poor teachers who are already swamped with 30 or 40 children, ranging from extra bright to plain dumb. Atlanta's gifted children, who number about 5,000 and come from all economic brackets, must stay where they are and wait until Atlanta does something Dr. Letson calls raising "the level of teacher quality."

I wasn't a gifted child and I'm not very quick about these things. But I know a little boy who will probably have a long gray beard before Dr. Letson prepares the 12 teachers facing him between now and high school commencement to satisfy the appetities of his voracious young mind along with all the other stuff a teacher has to do.

Byrd May Fight Boost for Colleges

Lt. Gov. Garland Byrd will fight Gov. Vandiver's proposal to allocate an additional $1.6 million to the University System, highly placed sources said Monday.

Byrd was reported ready to lead a Senate fight to amend the appropriations bill in the event the House passes the version calling for the university system increase.

The lieutenant governor will seek to have the funds channeled instead into the Education department to help raise teacher salaries, the sources said.

The move will serve to emphasize the breach between the offices of the governor and lieutenant governor, and it proves all over again that the two-week recess of the legislature did not have the effect of calming Georgia politics.

If Byrd is successful in amending the spending bill, $1.6 million would provide $50 per year for each teacher in addition to whatever other funds they receive.

But his supporters think it also would give him the image of being ready to fight for a break for teachers if he wins election as governor. It thus becomes a 1962 move.

After making the reported decision, incidentally, Byrd left for a fishing trip off the Georgia coast. His office said he will not return before the end of the week.

Vandiver was another vacationer, resting at an undisclosed spot in Florida after the rigors of the legislative session.

With the spending measure still up in the air and the appropriations committees looking into the budget further, there were rumblings and grumblings among numerous department heads, and delayed plans elsewhere.

The Highway department stayed quiet on its program to issue $100 million worth of bonds to rebuild some major highways although the Legislature authorized the program before the recess.

Highway department officials said there would be no annuoncement about the plans until the appropriations committees have completed their work.

The committees apparently were in a mood to take second looks at some of the cuts they had made.

It was reported on good authority that, in a vote behind closed doors, the committees voted to restore some cuts they had taken in the State Commerce Department's budget for advertising Georgia's tourist and industrial facilities.

The State Health department apparently agreed to a slash of $167,000 in Battey State Hospital funds, because of an increase which it found it could do without.

As the department heads defended their spending programs, State Revenue Commissioner Dixon Oxford protested being linked to what Vandiver reportedly felt was a power grab in the form of a new State Finance Commission.

Oxford said, "Any aide attached to the governor's office who planted this news story that attached the Revenue Commissioner to any power grab would be doing the administration an injustice."

Race Views Outmoded, Pastor Says

By JIM BENTLEY

ST. SIMONS ISLAND—A man called "America's greatest preacher" by the Christian Century Magazine told more than 1,000 Georgia Methodists here Monday that traditional Southern views on race relations are outmoded.

Dr. J. Wallace Hamilton of St. Petersburg, Fla., spoke of the growing population of the Negro race: "Already two to one," as compared to the white population, "and still increasing."

". . . This requires reorientation of our thinking," he asserted. "No matter how much we want to keep the old ways, we can't."

YEARS SAILING BY

Speaking of the speed of social change in the world today, Dr. Hamilton said, "A thousand years have been telescoped into 15.

"We might not know where we are going," he continued, "but it is certain we are going there in a hurry.

"The Christian way in this age is to transform the old by Christian fulfillment, change your mind and accept the new age.

"The church of Christ must be the forerunner in catching up with these changes," he added.

CHURCH SEATS 10,000

Dr. Hamilton is pastor of America's only interdenominational open air drive-in church. The church seats 10,000 worshippers in an indoor auditorium, several outdoor gardens, and in cars on eight acres of land.

His church is in the Pasadena Community, just outside of St. Petersburg.

The annual, seven-day meeting here at Epworth-by-the-Sea began Sunday, with services scheduled three times daily.

ATLANTANS HELPING

Assisting Dr. Hamilton with the preaching during the remainder of the week will be Dr. Pierce Harris, pastor of Atlanta's First Methodist Church.

Also on the program for the week-long meeting are three other Atlantans—Bishop John Owen Smith, retired Bishop Arthur J. Moore, and Dr. Louie D. Newton, pastor of the Druid Hills Baptist Church.

State to Wait Until Fall to Award Lease on Henry Grady

The state will wait until early fall to award leases on three choice pieces of downtown Atlanta property, including the Henry Grady Hotel.

Jesse Draper, chairman of the state's Mansion Sites Commission, said Monday the Legislature has passed a resolution allowing the Commission to work for the rest of the year in handling the state property. The commission will take bids on leases for the Henry Grady Hotel, the Roxy Theater and the Red Rock Building. Bids originally were scheduled to be opened Monday.

The sites now are under lease to Massell Realty Improvement Company. The lease expires in 1972. The rental is $35,000 annually until the end of next year, when it will increase to $43,000.

Draper said the lessees have been reluctant to invest large sums of money in a refurbishing program until they are assured of control for a longer period.

History Is Human

Martha Berry Lives On

By MARJORY RUTHERFORD

A great metropolitan engineer, William G. McAdoo, looked across a rolling campus in Rome, Ga., and said quietly:

"I would rather have been the founder of this school than to have built the Hudson River tunnel."

A famous journalist wrote that Martha Berry was "the first woman to make me sorry I was born a man."

Henry Ford, who contributed some of the millions that over the years transformed Rome's Berry Schools from a log cabin into the nation's largest campus, called its militant little spinster-founder "the greatest educator since Christ."

ROOSEVELT VISIT

And Teddy Roosevelt, visiting the Georgia school in 1911, declared, "This is the greatest practical work that has been done for American citizenship in this decade."

These and countless other accolades showered Martha Berry in her old age. She died full of honors, a serene old lady with snowy hair and patrician ways. Her success was evident in the wealth of buildings and young scholars all around her.

Her monument for uncounted generations to come will be the contributions of graduates of her amazing educational institution, the descendants of Georgia mountain boys and girls who might never have learned to read and write except for the stubborness of the "Sunday Lady of Possum Trot."

Shy mountain children and their inarticulate parents gave her that name before the turn of the century.

They used to watch eagerly for the "Sunday Lady," who came, driving a buggy through mist-capped Georgia mountains at 5 o'clock in the morning gathering up ragged boys and girls for her own tiny Sunday School.

The accompanying article on Martha Berry is one of a series of weekly articles by Constitution staffers on famed Georgians. Dr. E. M. Coulter, retired head of the history department of the University of Georgia, is adviser for the series. Readers, particularly students, are urged to save this article, as a quiz on Martha Berry will be published in Thursday's Constitution.

Possum Trot was the community near Oak Hill, the plantation home of Capt. Thomas Berry, who had settled in Rome in 1840. tages," luxury galore.

OF WEALTHY PARENTS

Martha McChesney Berry was born there Oct. 7, 1866. She had a brother and four sisters, wealthy and indulgent parents, toys and pretty dresses, "advan-

But even as a little girl her Bible and Christ's teachings spoke to Martha Berry. She was uneasily aware of poverty and ignorance around her.

She was shocked to find neighboring mountain children who had never heard of Sunday school. She started classes in a playhouse she had used as a child. Wide-eyed boys and girls walked seven miles from the hamlet of Mount Lavendar to hear her Bible stories. Some of them were accompanied by adult members of the family — even aged grandparents.

BIBLE TO 3 R'S

Miss Berry started hitching up her horse, Roney, to a buggy and collecting youngsters who lived too far away to reach Sunday school.

Eventually Bible stories led to the three Rs, too. Cooking lessons, arts and crafts, and the practical gospel of well-furrowed fields and well-stocked barns followed.

The day school became an institution with a dormitory, then several. Any child who wanted an education could come and work for his tuition. Boys and girls took home the things they had learned.

EARLY STRUGGLE HARD

The admiration and acclaim Miss Berry enjoyed in her old age was missing in those early days of struggle. Some people looked askance at the gentle-bred Georgia woman who turned her back on wealth and worldly things to serve humble children outside her own social orbit.

Friends warned Martha Berry she would make her students "dissatisfied." She retorted, "That's the way I want them to be. So they can achieve more."

She persevered in a one-woman crusade. She brought book learning — and the pride of work well done — to boys in patched overalls and girls in faded ginghams.

HER 4 SYMBOLS

Her nondenominational school had four symbols: a Bible for prayer, a lamp for learning, a plow for labor, and a cabin for simplicity. Its entrance was lettered "The Gate of Opportunity."

More and more youngsters sought that "gate." The time came when Miss Martha needed money to expand.

She enlisted powerful allies in her crusade.

Andrew Carnegie was the first donor to the Berry Schools. The publisher of The New York Times led an endowment drive. Miss Berry's driving force enlisted the sympathies and support of Calvin Coolidge, Woodrow Wilson, Eleanor Roosevelt, and William Jennings Bryan.

FRIEND OF FORDS

The Henry Fords became not only benefactors but lifelong friends and perennial visitors to Berry Schools.

Observers reported Miss Berry "charmed" the rich into supporting her schools. There were stories about her showmanship. Once, it is said, she won over an egotistical philanthropist by having his portraits hanging all over the Berry buildings. (Actually she used a single picture, the story goes, but one of her students was assigned to rush before the visiting prospect and rehang his portrait at new spots.)

The little spinster had her crotchets. But her "whims of iron" were glorious ones. She had spires not only on the Berry chapel but on barns and chicken coops. Martha Berry wanted hard-working boys and girls "to be reminded of God on Mondays, too."

OVER 30,000 ACRES

People who once scoffed at her educational crusade had to eat their words.

Berry Schools grew to more than 30,000 reclaimed acres—grammar schools, community school, two high schools. The schools and their founder received international fame.

Miss Berry was given honorary degrees, trophies and titles. She was named one of the "10 great women of the world." She accepted the tributes graciously, but her students' success stories and the annual "Mountain Day" return visits of graduates, often accompanied by spouses and children acquired since their Berry days, were sweeter accolades.

TELLS OF PURPOSE

When she lay dying late in April, 1942, Martha Berry dictated from her hospital bed a statement of her purpose.

It began: "In the words of Uncle Remus, 'I was born and raised in the foothills of the Blue Ridge Mountains of Georgia, where the red birds and whippoorwills sing all the year.'

"As I rode my pony over the hills and saw the boys and girls without any opportunity, no churches, no schools, I began thinking they must be given some chance in life . . .

HATED HUMAN WASTE

"I was inspired to start a school . . . Human waste seems the most awful thing on earth to me. I could see human waste all around me. There is no greater national asset than our boys and girls, and conservation of them is of far greater importance than that of forests, rivers or anything else."

The farewell message included an ironic sentence. Miss Berry wrote, "I thought that in a few years the school would run itself and I could go on with my own life."

REVISED HER PLANS

But at some point in her career she revised her plans. Martha Berry gave up "my own life."

The redbirds and whippoorwills sing above her grave today on the Berry campus. The gravestone bears the name she began and ended life with, the dates spanning 75 useful years, and the Scriptural motto Martha Berry shared with her schools:

"Not to be ministered unto, but to minister."

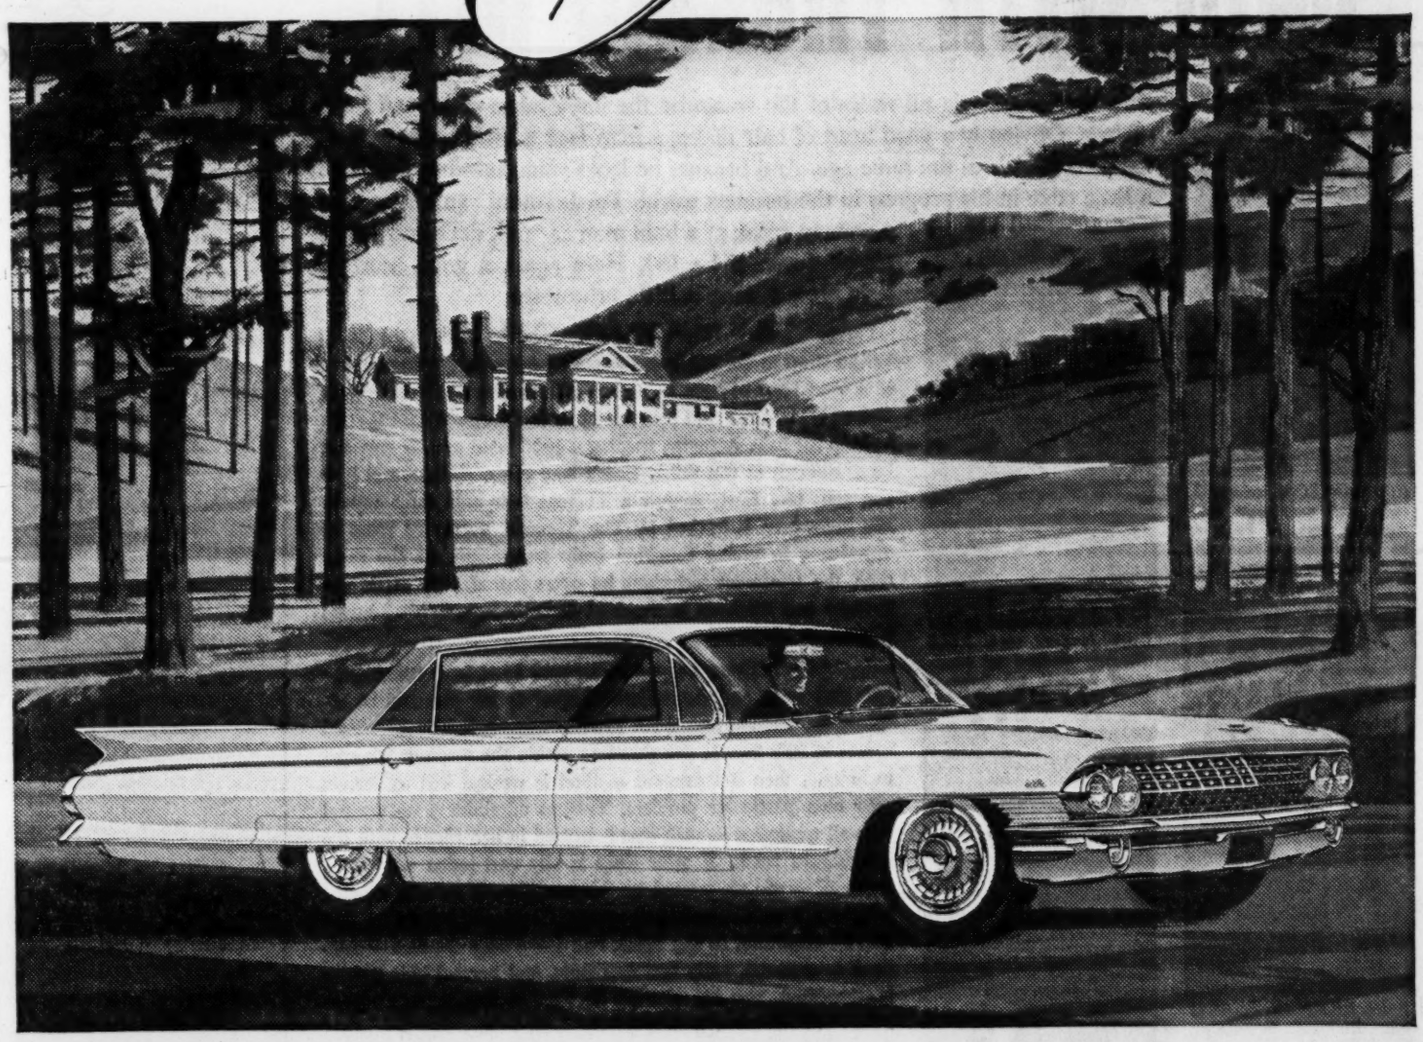
Cadillac



The same road...but what a difference!

This is the lane that leads home—and he has driven it more times than he can remember.

But there's something different about it today—for this is the first time it has rolled beneath the wheels of his new Cadillac car.

And here, as he is now discovering, is motordom's truest miracle in motion.

First of all, there's the way a 1961 Cadillac smooths out that familiar surface. By the time those bumps and irregularities have been absorbed in that marvelous new suspension system . . . and cushioned in those deep Cadillac seats . . . they are almost impossible to detect.

Then there is the car's extraordinary quiet. Cadillac's careful craftsmanship and precision engineering provide such silence of operation that you can speak in a whisper.

And what poise and balance the car has! It is wonderfully steady and sure-footed through every mile . . . and it has a feeling of solidity and substance that comes from no other motor car.

Of course, these are but a few of the myriad pleasures of driving the new "car of cars"—in addition to its great handling ease and its magnificent interior comfort and luxury.

May we suggest that you take a 1961 Cadillac out soon on some challenging stretch of highway—and see for yourself?

Your Cadillac dealer will be happy to let the car work its magic for you at any time.

HOW SUCCESSFUL MEN KEEP HAIR WITH THOMAS HELP

NORMAN ROSS, television, radio and newspaper commentator, says, "I know of no finer treatment than that given by The Thomas'."

LES BROWN, world famous band leader, says, "The Thomas method of treatment helped me keep a good head of hair."

SAUL RICHMAN, President Saul Richman Associates, public relations, says, "Thomas has helped me to keep most of my hair."

HARRY FLYNN, Insurance Broker, says, "I took my first Thomas treatment 34 years ago—I thank Thomas for the hair I have today."

HAROLD JAFFE, sales manager American Kosher Provisions, says, "Thomas quickly solved my hair and scalp problems."

LEE CASTLE, conductor of Jimmy Dorsey Orchestra, says, "In my work a good head of hair is a must—Thomas treatment does it."

Successful men in all walks of life recognize the importance of a good head of hair. Obviously a good head of hair makes a man look a little younger than his bald friends of the same age. And because he looks younger—he may have a little edge in his progress in the business world. Furthermore you never hear a woman speak of a bald man as "tall, dark and handsome" (even if he IS). Here again a good head of hair gives a man a little advantage.

YOU NEED TO KEEP YOUR HAIR

While men in the public eye are more aware of the importance of a good head of hair, any man improves his appearance — as well as his business and personal opportunities — by taking steps to keep his hair. Actually, keeping a good head of hair may not be as difficult as you think. Here's how others do it — and how you can, too. First, consult a Thomas hair and scalp expert. His know-how is backed by The Thomas' nearly 40 years of experience in giving 8-million scalp treatments. At the same time, the treatment technique he offers includes the latest discoveries and methods in the field of trichology. With Thomas you are sure!

What does a Thomas expert do for you? First, he examines your hair and scalp and determines whether or not you can be accepted for Thomas treatment. Thomas treats only the major local causes of hair-loss. If you do come within the scope of Thomas technique, then a treatment method is worked out to correct your own particular problem. Thomas administers no general cure-all treatment — each case is treated in accordance with the individual's needs. If your scalp is oily and laden with itchy dandruff — you are treated for this condition. If you are afflicted with spotty baldness (alopecia areata) — you are treated for that specific condition. In any event, hair fall is soon checked — dandruff is removed, scalp itch overcome, and normal hair growth is stimulated. You are soon on the road to saving the hair you have — of having a better, thicker head of hair!

FREE CONSULTATION — TRIAL TREATMENT OFFER

Decide today to do everything possible to keep a good head of hair. Consult a Thomas specialist and find out exactly what can be done to help you. No charge for a complete scalp examination (in private) or for advice. If you are accepted for treatment, Thomas will administer one full length treatment at just one-half the regular fee, so you can see for yourself exactly what the treatment is like. Come in today — no obligation, and no appointment needed for the free scalp examination and trial treatment.

Legislators Seek Boost In $100 Teacher Raise

provided to pay the increase in the state's contribution to the Teacher Retirement Fund required by the salary increase, he added.

Vandiver emphasized that authority is also contained in the contingent section to grant other raises up to $600 more should income be sufficient to finance them.

The governor also stressed that since the present level of the spending bill is $8.3 million above anticipated income, "prudent administration . . . will not permit any higher overall figures than these."

Rep. Frank Twitty of Mitchell County, referring to the $100 raise, said "nobody's saying that's enough, and nobody's saying that's what it will be."

Sen. Howard Overby of Gainesville said he does not feel the $100 is going to be adequate. He said he thinks the committees can "come up with at least $200 in the regular section and $200 in the contingent section."

DOUBTS SUFFICIENCY

Rep. Joe Underwood of Montgomery County said the $100 "will help, but I don't know if that will be enough."

Sen. Erwin Mitchell of Dalton said he thought teachers of Georgia "can be thankful that the bookkeeping by state officials" could simply turn up a $4.5 million discrepancy.

"Would that this could happen every day," Mitchell declared.

But he added that "this has no effect on the work of the appropriations committees except to further intensify scrutiny of the budget with a view toward uncovering other lost monies in order that a raise substantially higher than $100 will be forthcoming."

REVOLT DECLARED

Shortly before the governor's office issued his statement, the two committees issued one of their own which said the General Assembly is taking control of the financial affairs of the state.

"At the request of the governor and the press, and the demand of the public, this General Assembly for the first time in almost 20 years is accepting this responsibility," the statement said.

Rep. Ray said the statement was unanimously approved by the entire joint committee. And he said that the committees had also voted to continue holding closed sessions on the bill. Gov. Vandiver said Saturday he hoped the committees would open their sessions to the public and the press.

The committee statement said that to accomplish their acceptance of budgetary powers, "it is essential that we remain free to inquire into the finances of each state department without interruption."

At the same time, the committees said the legislature is meeting its challenge "with determination not to be intimidated or deterred by bureaucrats or other forces with tendencies, which, if not checked in time, will result in taking the control of our governmental affairs out of the hands of the people."

son Ferry Rd., NE, who had requested a grant for his son, Richard E. Blanchard Jr., a student of the high school division of Georgia Military College.

The Fulton County Board of Education will discuss the request at a meeting at 2 p.m. Tuesday.

The Atlanta Board was considering a similar request by attorney Moreton Rolleston at its Monday night meeting.

The State Department of Education meanwhile reported that a preliminary survey shows 16,000 children in Georgia private schools on the primary and secondary level. About 10 per cent are Negro.

The totals are not broken down between sectarian and non-sectarian schools. Grants under the new law are available only for use in non-sectarian schools.

J. M. Cook, a vice president of Cutler-Hammer, Milwaukee, and E. R. Jung, vice president of Clark Controller Co., Cleveland, also received 30-day sentences.

Ganey said he would have sent F. F. Loock, 68, president of Allen-Bradley — a $130,000-a-year job, to jail also except for his age and that his wife was ill. Loock was fined $7,500.

OFFICIALS ALSO FINED

Ginn was fined $12,500 on two indictments; Mauntel $2,500 on two indictments, and Chiles was fined $2,000, Burger $2,000, Burens $4,000. Cook $2,000 and Jung $2,000, all for one indictment each.

There were 72 pleas of guilty and 89 of no defense to 20 indictments for fixing prices and rigging bids at secret meetings.

Ganey pronounced sentence on six indictments, leaving 14 for disposition Tuesday and Wednesday.

Westinghouse, the first sentenced, was fined $40,000 on the first count, involving the sale of power transformer equipment. GE was next: $40,000. The third indictment involved turbine generators. GE was fined $50,000, Westinghouse $35,000 and Allis-Chalmers $25,000. This was the most important indictment according to the government and involved an annual business by the three firms of nearly a half billion dollars

The fourth indictment involved industrial control equipment. Allen Bradley was fined $40,000, Clark Controller Co. $25,000, Cutler-Hammer $25,000, GE $35,000; Square D, Detroit, $35,000 and Westinghouse $40,000.

Rusk Urges Boost For U.N. in Congo

country. He advocated similar international supervision of arms in Laos.

Rusk made these other points:

1. The disarmanent administration within the State deaprtment is studying when and how Communist China might be brought into disarmament talks.

SERIOUS DAYS SEEN

2. Americans should realize that release of the crew of the RB47 and exchange of civil word between governments does not mean that basic problems have been solved. There are "some serious days and some hard work ahead."

3. The U.S. is ready to cooperate with other American states "to end tyranny, whether of the left or right."

4. U.S. commitments to preservation of the freedom of West Berlin and to Nationalist China remain unchanged.

USING BEST METHOD

5. On the question whether to work through traditional diplomatic channels or summit conference, the Kennedy administration will use whatever method seems most useful at the time.

6. The possibility of making the May meeting of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization in Oslo a Western heads of government meeting is under study.

Secretary Rusk's news conference strengthened the belief that the administration, while categorically opposing Communist intrusion in the Western Hemisphere, is now pursuing a policy of conciliation between pro-Eastern and pro-Western factions in both the Congo and Laos.

LAOS ANALYZED

In Laos this appears to mean acquiescing in the participation of former Premier Souvanna Phouma or a similar Eastern-oriented neutralist in the government of Prince Boun Oum. But indications are that it does not go so far as favoring inclusion of representatives of the Communist Pathet Lao.

In the Congo American officials do not hide their distaste for Lumumba. But they acknowledge that he has a large following which is entitled to representation.

The automobile took the place . . . Of horses . . . And the railroad train . . . For many years has had to face . . . Keen competition from the plane . . . But, all things being as they are . . . We think the train is best to ride . . . For, recently, we wrecked our car . . . While traveling the countryside . . . A friend of ours fell from his horse . . . Further in the future are publication plans for a fifth book, on homosexuals, and a sixth involving transvestites — people who wear clothes of the opposite sex.

The plans were announced by the Institute for Sex Research at Indiana University.

The Kinsey Reports started with one on men's sexual behavior, a best seller in 1948, followed by one on women in 1953 and one on "pregnancy, birth and abortion" in 1958.

Puts Arts First

Arts should be placed first on the scale of values, not relegated to a position below political stability and a life of comfort, Dr. William Benner told an Atlanta University Center Convocation this week.

Analyzing the values of Western society, the Howard University professor of philosophy said the most dangerous man in the world is the one who disavows philosophy, yet represents a philosophy of his own. The first slave ships, sweat shops, legislation for segregation all reflect a philosophy, he said.

Atlanta Council of Churches Opposes Mixed Drinks, 70-2, Asks Crackdown

Members of the Greater Atlanta Council of Churches Monday adopted a special resolution opposing the sale of mixed drinks, and calling for officials "to enforce the law as it is now written."

To bring the bill to the immediate attention of the members, churchmen rescinded a resolution which called for all such proposals to have approval of the council's executive board before being placed before the membership.

The resolution passed 70 to 2 by Council members read:

"The Greater Atlanta Council of Churches is opposed to the sale of mixed drinks. We urge members of the General Assembly to defeat the Dicus Bill, House Bill 345.

"In view of the special presentment of the Fulton County grand jury on Jan. 31, regarding the widespread violation of the law, we call upon the proper law enforcement authorities in city and county government to enforce the law as now written."

Copies of the resolution will be sent to Gov. Vandiver, Rep. Harry Dicus of Muscogee County, the Senate temperance committee, Mayor Hartsfield.

Missile Gap Closed, U.S. Thinks

limited wars in far off areas, if necessary.

President Kennedy already has ordered a stepup in the Polaris missile submarine program and the missile effort, and in U. S. capacity to airlift forces to world trouble spots.

At present, the new Pentagon team appears to be convinced the Soviets do not have more nuclear-tipped missiles than the United States.

Apparently, there is not sufficient information at hand to conclude whether there will be a missile gap in the future.

In assailing the Eisenhower administration's defense policy, Democrats said the Soviets would have a 3-1 advantage in the early 1960s unless more money and effort was devoted to strengthening the American missile program.

Another Eisenhower assumption which apparently stands up under the new study by Democrats is that the Soviets have not launched a crash program to manufacture missiles.

The Soviet Union is known to be devoting an overwhelming share of its budget to military programs. This includes big quantities of missiles but not as many as could be produced by an all-out drive.

Clinkscales Case Opens; Jury Selection Takes Day

the charges were "untrue and are denied."

The case is being heard before Judge F. Frederick Kennedy of Augusta. Newly elected Superior Court Judge Richard B. Russell III, who defeated Clinkscales for re-election, was an observer at the trial.

The case has been in court since the filing of the disbarment petition in July, 1959. Prior to that, in February, 1959, Clinkscales, then judge, dismissed a Jackson County grand jury which was investigating county finances. Members of the grand jury formed the citizens committee, along with three other citizens. The petition was drawn by 10 attorneys of the Piedmont Bar Association—which is comprised of lawyers of the Piedmont Judicial Circuit of which Clinkscales was judge.

ONE STILL PENDING

In August 1959, Clinkscales was indicted by a grand jury, charged with conspiring to cheat and defraud Jackson County. Attorney Pierce was indicted at the same time. One charge of this indictment is still pending. Others have been dismissed in various court actions.

The disbarment proceedings already have gone to Georgia's Supreme Court on defense actions brought by Clinkscales. The supreme court ruled, however, that a superior court judge could be disbarred like any other attorney.

STRIKES UNLIMITED

The court called a total of 103 prospective jurors to make sure it would have enough—with unlimited strikes allowed because of kinship on each side. Twenty-nine prospective jurors were struck before a first panel could be drawn.

The court finally wound up with 12 jurors and two alternates, but the kinship question came up anyway after the actual start of the trial. One juror said one of the relators was his half-sister's son, and so the juror was excused from the box. The juror had not heard the relator's name read on the first round.

The death rate among America policyholders of ordinary life insurance for 1960 is estimated at 6 for every 1,000 persons. This is less by a small fraction than 1959, and represents a decrease of about one-fifth over the last 40 years.

Kennedy Asks Wider Jobless Pay, Help for Children of Unemployed

the extension be greater than 13 weeks.

In a state that allows benefits now for 20 weeks, Kennedy's formula would work this way:

An unemployed worker who received state benefits for 20 weeks and still had no job could receive federal benefits for an additional 10 weeks.

Different states allow different durations for benefits. Under the Kennedy bill, however, total state and federal benefits could not exceed 39 weeks.

Kennedy noted that the country now has 5.4 million unemployed workers and that 500,000 already have exhausted their state benefits.

In his economic message, Kennedy said the temporary benefits should be paid for by general tax revenues of the U. S. government. He suggested, however, that this be repaid later from increased unemployment insurance contributions paid by employers.

Kennedy also noted that needy children are eligible for help if their fathers are dead or disabled or have deserted them.

Polaris Stage 2 Breaks Away In Fiery Fizzle

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) —The second stage of a Polaris missile sailed like a flaming pinwheel over the cape Monday, then crashed to the ground in a spectacular failure. There were no injuries or serious damage.

When the countdown on the 31-foot missile reached zero, the upper stage suddenly spurted several hundred feet into the air, leaving the first stage on the pad, shooting fire from both ends.

The upper section cartwheeled over and over, showering flaming fragments back onto the cape. Its fiery journey ended several seconds later when it smacked to an open ground area about 700 yards to the northeast.

(Motor Trend's CAR OF THE YEAR Award goes to Pontiac's Tempest!)

The Motor Trend Magazine Car of the Year Award to Tempest marks the second time in three years that the Pontiac Motor Division has received this honor. The editors who selected it are (left to right): Robert Ames, Associate Editor. James Miller, Managing Editor. Don Werner, Editor.

These men edit one of America's leading car magazines—Motor Trend. What they know about cars can help you buy your next new car with complete confidence. They study all the different makes. Compare. Drive. Then they make one award for the year. The Motor Trend Car of the Year Award. This year these editors voted solidly for Pontiac's newcomer —the Tempest. The one car that will give the car buyer top performance, ride and economy for his nickel. Read what these experts say!

Don Werner—"We studied the design features of 28 American cars. The Tempest pulled ahead of the whole crop of '61 cars. The flexible drive-shaft is a fantastic innovation. It's the most sensible, dependable power train we've seen."

Bob Ames—"Equalizing the weight on the front wheels and the weight on the rear wheels (with the front engine/rear transmission) gives the Tempest great traction and ride. Pontiac engineers scored a great breakthrough with the Tempest."

Jim Miller—"The Tempest 4-cylinder engine and the triple alloy steel drive-shaft team up as a smooth, going combination. I had to look under the hood to convince myself they hadn't sneaked in a V-8. And that 4-cylinder engine should do wonders for gas economy."

Take it from this group of sharp automobile experts. They don't throw roses unless they mean it. Tempest took the Car of the Year Award because it's a winner. Check the facts! 110 to 155 h.p. from a gas-saving 4-cylinder engine! Big car balance = big car ride! Independent wheel suspension. Rear transmission. 15-inch wheels at no extra cost! Priced with the compacts. See your Pontiac dealer.

Signor Micael Giovine, co-inventor of the Marmic System, played today's hand in an important Italian championship and went down one trick at his six-spade contract. Disturbed over the result, he thought about the hand most of that night and finally came up with the solution.

He later showed the hand to Jean Besse, Swiss international player, and asked him how he would play it. "I merrily misplayed the hand," writes Besse.

Besse carried on from there and showed the deal to Adam Meredith. Adam, one of England's finest players, made several tries but, after 30 minutes had to give up.

Besse next tried Roger Trezel, a member of the French team which recently won the World Bridge Olympiad, but Trezel after careful study said modestly, "This hand is too tough for me."

Then Besse showed the hand to Pierre Jais, Trezel's favorite partner, but again no success.

"Thereafter," writes Besse, "I tried that hand on all experts I met, and only Fritz Goudsmidt, of Holland, found the correct play. So we may call this hand the biggest expert trap in the world!"

How would you play the hand at six spades after West opens the king of hearts?

ANSWER

Declarer's problem is to establish dummy's clubs with one ruff, draw trumps and run the clubs. Here is how it can be done against all normal breaks; that is, a 2-2 or 3-1 trump split and a 3-2 club split:

South ruffs the heart king with North's spade 7 and cashes the ace-king of clubs, discarding a heart from his hand. He leads a small club and, when East follows, he ruffs with the ace of spades to prevent West from overruffing.

Next declarer leads a spade to dummy's king and plays a good club, discarding his least heart while West ruffs. West returns the ace of hearts (it doesn't matter what he does) and South, who is now void of hearts, ruffs in the closed hand.

HEALTH: Pinworms Play Havoc With Child

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: Some 60 years ago my sister had a little girl of 7 or 8 years who couldn't rest at night.

When put to bed she would toss and turn, flop from one side to the other. It was most distressing.

The family doctor decided she had a brain disorder, and my sister sent her down to the farm with mother. Mother consulted an old, retired local doctor. He said the child had pinworms and before retiring should be given an enema of warm water mixed with corn starch and (I think) several drops of turpentine. I can't recall the exact amounts.

Anyway, it worked like a charm. What do you think of that?—Mrs. L. F. J.

I think it's a most interesting letter and one from which we can learn some things. Not that I would, today, condone the use of that particular remedy, but I wouldn't doubt that it was the best one known to that wise old retired doctor 60 years ago.

Today there are better, more effective, and easier remedies to use.

But there is nothing out-of-date about that old doctor's wisdom in suspecting, and then finding, pinworms. They are still a problem, and with the rate at which the population is growing, and the necessity for many people to live in steadily more closely knit groups, it wouldn't surprise me if pinworm trouble might become even more prevalent, unless we do something to stop it.

A child, or an adult for that matter, may not be aware of the reason why he is so restless. Pinworms can, by depriving a child of rest, play havoc. It's one of the things to look for when a child thrashes around and grinds his teeth in his sleep.

You don't as a rule find pinworms unless you look for them. They look like little short bits of thread. But in some fairly recent studies it has become apparent that pinworms are more common than we thought. Evidently they bother some people very little. They may make others extremely unhappy. So it's well worth keeping pinworms in mind.

As to treatment, the heroic measures of past years are no longer necessary. Medicines taken by mouth, especially the newest types, successfully clear away the pests.

The one thing to remember is that getting rid of pinworms doesn't insure against getting them again, any more than killing a mosquito insures against another mosquito coming along.

The best protection against getting pinworms is care in washing the hands before eating. It's not always easy to get children to wash before eating, especially when the eating involves a candy bar or sandwich. However, do your best. Also make sure that everyone else in the household is free of pinworms. They are transmitted, of course, by swallowing the invisible little eggs which later hatch out into worms.

TASTE THE GREATNESS
... of time-honored Old Crow bourbon

GREAT DAY in 1835, when James Crow, scientist and distiller, invited his neighbors to appraise the great bourbon he had developed... setting a new standard of quality for all time.

Old Crow was born 126 years ago. It signalled a new era in Kentucky whiskey-making. For the first time, a bourbon had been perfected so magnificent in taste that it excelled all others. This excellence has held through the years. Today—in its light, mild 86 proof bottling—Old Crow is America's most preferred bourbon. And the reason for the preference is still its superb flavor. Taste the light, mild "greatness" of Old Crow...next time.

Russell Pushes for Farm Aid

By CHARLES MOORE

Sen. Richard Russell said here Monday he is greatly disappointed that the Kennedy administration isn't moving with greater speed toward meeting the problem of American farmers.

Russell said that it appears the new Democratic President has given "a much higher priority" to such problems as depressed industrial areas than to the farm depression.

However, he noted that some of the blame for lack of speed on the farm "could be laid at our own doorsteps" due to a lack of agreement on the correct solution.

Sen. Russell said there are about as many proposals as there are farming area congressmen and farm organizations for solving the complex problem.

Yet, Russell contended, something must be done immediately, and he isn't too happy over Kennedy's selection of top Department of Agriculture officials.

"The disastrous drop in farm income is the most critical domestic problem before the country," the Georgia Democratic leader told the annual meeting of the Georgia, Alabama-Florida and Carolinas cotton ginners associations in session here.

"It should be the first order of business of the new administration."

However, the farm problem has a low priority and Kennedy's top agriculture officials are men "distinguished in politics and the law rather than in farming," he said.

Russell blamed the woes of American farmers on the eight years of "unwise and misguided" Republican farm policies.

Russell predicted the new Democratic administration's farm program will include a land retirement program along the lines of the present soil conservation reserve.

Atlantan Arrested in College Fire

A one-time Atlanta ministerial student has been arrested in connection with three weekend fires at Mars Hill Junior College in Mars Hill, N.C., North Carolina authorities said Monday.

Atlanta officers said the suspect, Robert Lee Henry Jr., 22, of 785 Edgewood Ave., NE, was under bond here on larceny charges and also had been questioned in conection with a dozen fires of suspicious origin along Edgewood Avenue, one of them in his home and nine next door.

One of the North Carolina fires destroyed a 57-year-old 600-seat auditorium at the college and others were started in dormitory buildings.

Lt. K. G. Davis of the Atlanta Fire Prevention Bureau said Henry was picked up here Jan. 12 for suspicion of arson and released the following day.

Detectives A. E. McKinnon and R. H. Sumpter said Henry, a former student at Mars Hill, was arrested here on charges of larceny from a department store and on Dec. 19, 1960, was bound over under $500 bond.

TO VISIT—Mrs. Mary V. Cone, national president of the Auxiliary of the United Spanish War Veterans, and Charles E. M. Howard, national commander-in-chief of the veterans organization, will pay an official visit to Atlanta Tuesday and Wednesday. Representatives from local units from throughout the state will be here to meet with them.

'Music Man' A Rousing Hit Here

By MARJORY RUTHERFORD

The "happiest musical ever to hit Broadway" hasn't lost a thing on the road.

"The Music Man," Meredith Willson's rollicking, folksy tale of a fascinating con man and a small town miracle, opened a six-night, two-matinee stand Monday night at the Municipal Auditorium. Before the evening was over a topnotch touring company had its Atlanta audience clapping in cadence and humming "Seventy-six Trombones" and "Goodnight, My Someone."

"Music Man" is warm and wonderful corn, and first-nighters here gobbled it up with glee.

Deboniar Forrest Tucker, in the title role of Harold Hill, a fast-talking, twinkled-toed, thoroughly delightful rascal, easily stole the show. And he had some stiff competition in a long-stemmed leading lady, several capable comedians, and a little red-headed boy with a lisp.

Statuesque Joan Weldon was a charmer as Marian, the small town librarian who helped Hill change his ways. She was especially effective in the tender solo, "My White Knight." Pint-sized Howie Robinson earned his applause with more than a mop of flaming hair. Comedians Cliff Hall and Benny Baker and supporting players Monique Vermont and Jane Lillig were other crowd-pleasers.

Fire Kills Boy Playing With Match

A 6-year-old Negro boy was fatally burned Monday when his clothing caught fire, evidently from his playing with matches, police said.

Donnie Gail Brock, of 2124 Ville St., SE, his clothing blazing, dashed out the back door of his home, ran screaming up an embankment and then back to the driveway where he collapsed. Detectives said the body was found in the driveway, most of the clothing burned away.

Chief Lemke Injured On Way to Fight Fire

An assistant fire chief was seriously injured and two others less seriously hurt Monday in the collision of a fire department car on an emergency run and a tractor-trailer, police said.

Battalion Fire Chief Claude Lemke, 45, of 268 Park Ave., SE, was reported in "satisfactory" condition at Grady Hospital with severe bruises and a neck injury.

Chief Lemke's driver, Andy William Cox, 31, of 1068 Faith Ave., SE, and a passenger in the truck, Alan Middlebrooks, 52, of 218 Collier Rd., Forest Park, were treated at Grady and dismissed.

Chief Lemke and his driver were en route to a call on Houston Street that turned out to be a mattress fire, police said, and were traveling with red light and siren on, records showed.

Patrolman M. F. Jones said the chief's car was traveling south on Courtland and the tractor-trailer, driven by Sherald Emerson Denham, 35, of 250 Emory Pl., NE, was headed west on Forrest. He added both drivers told him they did not see the other vehicle until they entered the intersection and both attempted to avoid the crash.

Denham was charged with failure to yield the right of way to an emergency vehicle, Jones said, and Cox was charged with overrunning a red light and accident.

As I See It

Jackie Jolts Sponsor But Critics Applaud

By PAUL JONES

Jackie Gleason's honesty in admitting on the air that he had presented one of the worst shows in TV history shook up some folks in network circles—but it has certainly brought a wave of applause from the critics.

As a matter of fact, one sponsor—the Kellogg Company—has cancelled its interest in Gleason's TV activities. The firm, which makes breakfast cereals, pulled out because Gleason no longer is presenting "You're in the Picture," a comedy panel show Kellogg maintains it purchased.

Jones

After doing the initial panel program, Gleason did a one-man show and, in a monologue, told how perfectly dreadful he thought the first show was.

In his third appearance last Friday night in the spot blocked out for "You're in the Picture," Gleason resumed his monologue. This time he told how he had tried to round up a guest star to appear on the show with him but had been unsucessful. "I called a friend out in Hollywood to ask him to help me out," said Gleason, "but all I could hear was the clatter of bowling balls in the background.

Jackie obviously was referring to Milton Berle, who is currently appearing on a bowling show for NBC-TV, which NBC incidentally entered into a multi-million-dollar contract with Berle several years ago.

Failing in his quest for human talent, Gleason found a chimpanzee who, while not able to engage in any dialogue, was effective as a straight man for some of Jackie's best humor.

AT THIS POINT Gleason is uncertain just what form his fourth show will take. He made no reference to this week's program at all.

Meanwhile, he probably is catching up on his reading, pouring over some of the press notices which acclaimed his first one-man show.

The New York Daily News showered this praise on him: "In novelty, human interest and humor, it was the best show Gleason ever gave . . . he did a daring, unprecedented thing."

Here's what the Washington Daily News critic said: "He was never more witty, warm, friendly and charmingly disarming . . . Jackie Gleason looked 10 feet tall."

Daily Variety said: "The year's lustiest one-man show." . . . The Los Angeles Examiner: "A hilarious one-man performance." . . . The New York Post: "A verbal rocket."

To which I add my humble appraisal: Jackie's two one-man shows were wonderfully entertaining, the informal sort of thing for which TV is so suited.

* * *

I HOPE THAT Gleason continues to play this show by ear.

Rehearsals and tape have ruined more good TV shows than anything else.

I like the spontaniety of the Gleason one-man outings. I like the surprise element. And I especially like his honesty. He's the only performer I know of, who had admitted a bad performance.

Unless his one and only sponsor (Liggett and Myers Tobacco Company) cancels out I'm going to be with Gleason again Friday for more surprises.

I hope he is able to continue.

'Time Remembered' Offers Pure Delight and All Froth

By THE TV SCOUT

BEST BET—"Time Remembered," a delightful romantic comedy, is the Hallmark Hall of Fame production Tuesday; it's a kind of candy - coated pre-Valentine's Day treat.

Plummer

The plot cannot stand careful analysis, but don't worry about that. We meet Dame Edith Evans as a flighty but good-hearted duchess who hires Janet Munro, a millinery worker. Janet's job is to impersonate a dead ballerina who, years before, had infatuated the duchess' nephew, Christopher Plummer, during three beautiful days.

Plummer lives for his memories for those three days, so his aunt generously recreates the scenes of the love affair on her estate, even to rebuilding the club where the lovers danced. Miss Munro steps into this fairyland and tries to be the other girl—even to eating orchids as the ballet dancer did.

The play is all froth and a pure delight, with the expert cast and the sets and music enhancing the mood of make-believe. Real orchids and real champagne were used in taping this. Miss Munro said the orchids "weren't too bad once you got used to them," but Plummer begged them to switch from champagne to a soft drink after the first few scenes. 7:30-9 (Ch. 2).

8-8:30 (Ch. 11)—The Rifleman Tuesday begins its first two-parter, in an obvious effort to give Chuck Connors, as Luke McCain, a chance at some more wide-open action. The cattle around North Folk all die off, so Luke, to earn the price of a new herd, takes a job in Wyoming, tracking down some gun smugglers. And he leaves a heartbroken son behind. This first one establishes all this, and dips a tentative toe into the action to follow next week.

8:30-9 (Ch. 5) — More and more, Dobie Gillis is becoming The Maynard Krebs Show. This week, Bob Denver, the talented young actor-comedian who plays Maynard, has a fine time with his role.

Maynard realizes that he is holding his good buddy back, and resolves to break off the friendship. He does so, to the astonishment of all and the embarrassment o fDobie. Denver does a funny job as he switches from a good guy to a bad guy, all for love of a friend.

9-10 (Ch. 11) — Stagecoach West covers familiar ground Tuesday. Once again, we have a fugitive befriended by the stagecoach drivers and their benevolent associates. Once again the followers track the fugitive to Halfway House. Once again the heroes have to choose sides. With a few minor exceptions—such as new names for the characters—this is a plot this program has done several times already this season. One minor added attraction is a slight romance for young David (Richard Eyer) in the person of a 16-year-old passenger, played by Karen Green, who had a long career as Eve Arden's daughter on TV.

9-10 (Ch. 2)—We're off to the remote English countryside in Thriller Tuesday. It's one of those fog-bound mysteries, made even eerier by being set mostly on an ancient Druid ceremonial ground on the moors. The show's title, "Hay Fork and Bill Hook," refers to the tools of the English hedge-clipper, and they make dandy murder weapons. Alan Caillou wrote this and stars in it; he's an actor and novelist who has been, in his day, a British intelligence officer, Palestine policeman, Yugoslavian guerrilla fighter and Ethiopian police chief.

10-1030 (Ch. 11)—When the Alcoa Presents company was filming its mushroom story in Mexico, they came upon another story, which is the basis for Tuesday's drama. It concerns a certain Dr. Atl, a real person who has no first name (they give him one in the story) and who appears at the end of this show in person. He was accused of murder, but claimed the actual killing was the work of a ghost. Certain evidence, which you'll see, appears to bear him out. He was freed on the weight of this evidence.

10-11 (Ch. 2)—NBC's new series, Story of Love, which will present "great love stories" from time to time, kicks off Tuesday with a tale which really isn't a love story at all. "A String of Beads," from a Somerset Maugham short story, is more of a character study.

Jane Fonda

The character is a poor girl, played by Jane Fonda, who loves her fella, George Grizzard, but just won't name the day. Then, by accident, she comes into possession of a valuable necklace, gets to mingle with rich people at a party, and is on the verge of deserting decency for ambition.

The dialogue here is bright, with bright people delivering it —Chester Morris as the girl's rich employer, Glenda Farrell as her down-to-earth mother, Rowland Winters as the jeweler.

HOOPLA—Gale Storm, once star of her own series, vocalizes in the "Wonderful Year, 1928," segment of the Garry Moore show at 10 p.m. Tuesday on Channel 5.

Crawford Long Celebrates

Dolls Co-Star at 50th Anniversary

By JEAN ROONEY

Fifteen diminutive ladies will co-star with auxiliary members, nurses and staff at the Crawford W. Long Hospital 50th birthday celebration Thursday and Friday.

The small starlets are actually dolls depicting the history of nursing, back to the cave-man era. They are the brain children of Mrs. Glenda Robinson, who teaches the hospital's student nurses.

Mrs. Robinson assigns her students to research nurses' attire through the ages and dresses the dolls accordingly.

"Most students hate history but when you bring it to life with dolls, it's easier to take," the nursing teacher explains.

"They'll never forget once they've done costumes on their predecessors," the practical prof explains.

What's more the students enjoy their doll-dressing project.

FLORENCE NIGHTINGALE

Though nursing history officially dates back to Florence Nightingale and the Crimean War (1854-1856) on an organized basis, women have been nursing their men folk and younger generation since Eve. At least since cave man days, Mrs. Robinson reminds.

So the number one doll is a Primitive Nurse. She wears a chic leopard skin and handmade jewelry.

"During the Greek and Roman days, the early peoples had a form of nursing too," Mrs. Robinson continues.

The wealthy women of that day opened their homes to the sick and passed on nursing techniques from mother to daughter.

In the Middle Ages, the Catholic orders of nuns developed good nursing skills, the teacher reminds, but they were suppressed by the Protestant Revolution.

Then came the Sairly Gamp type nurse of Dicken's novels.

"She had no nursing education but was dedicated," Mrs. Robinson quips.

GAUDY DRESS

Sairly wears a gaudy dress and dust cap and carries her whiskey bottle, for medicinal purposes, in the doll collection.

A pioneer of public nursing in the New Yorld was Mrs. Elizabeth Warren of Savannah. She turned her home into a hospital, according to Mrs. Robinson. Two of the earliest "trained nurses," educated in midwivery in England, were also Georgians: Jane Leak and Elizabeth Stanley of Savannah.

Of course, Miss Nightingale crowns the doll circle, in her prim black dress.

There's a Yankee nurse and Rebel nurse, from War Between the States days, sitting happily side by side in the hospital display.

FIGHT FOR SIGHT

The Army's Human Side Answered Carol's Need

By BETTY CARROLLTON

Intense emotional strain was the by-product of her plight as Carol, an Atlanta bride almost totally blind, tried to balance the seesaw of hope for normal vision.

She had approached the 1960 holiday season believing she had overcome the final barrier to good eyesight—her frantic fear of surgery. But when her husband's draft notice arrived in the mail with more welcome Christmas greetings, Carol felt she had been dealt an insurmountable blow.

Last in a series.

"As much as I wanted to see again," she said, "facing the operation without David was unthinkable. And it wasn't only my fear of surgery. I knew I simply couldn't get along without him during the weeks between the operations and the period of time it would take before I could get my glasses—and regain my sight."

Carol explained that the restoration of her vision would require two operations—one on each eye—about six months apart. After the initial surgery—scheduled for Jan. 10—it would be at least four, and probably six, weeks before she could don the cataract lenses that would give her unimpaired vision in that tye.

SEPARATION FROM DAVID

"The thought of being separated from David almost killed me," the 20-year-old Atlantan said. "And it was just as hard on him."

The young couple took their problem to the Atlanta office of the Georgia Association of Workers for the Blind, an organization that had first brightened Carol's future with the possibility of restoring her sight.

"It just seemed natural to turn to them for help," the worried young woman said.

Through the efforts of the GAWFB, the Vocational Rehabilitation Department of the State of Georgia, and personal friends of the couple, efforts were launched to cut through governmental red tape. They asked that Carol be allowed to have what she needed most, the presence of her husband through the ordeal she faced.

And the part of governmental red tape that Carol refers to as "the human side of the draft board," came through with the one emotional shot-in-the-arm she needed. David's military service was deferred for a year.

"I hope we made it clear," Carol said, "that he wasn't trying to get out of serving in the Army. He wants to go—and I want him to, but I want to be able to go with him.

EYESIGHT AGAIN

"When I have good eyesight again," she continued, "it won't matter where David is stationed. I'll be able to accompany him, go wherever he goes. I'll be able to work while he's in the Army, and that will mean a lot."

Carol was radiant when David's draft deferment came through. So much so that she had almost forgotten one other hurdle to be overcome before the operation: The operations and the many weeks of specialized care would mean a serious financial problem for the young couple.

Again Carol's new friends at the GAWFB and Vocational Rehabilitation Department came to her aid, and with the promise of her own earning power as an expert typist, she was ready to enter the hospital.

Carol underwent her first operation Jan. 10. She'll be back at work in the Association's typing room next week. In a month, she'll get her first lens which will restore the sight of one eye. Another operation to complete the restoration of her vision is scheduled in six months.

"The prospect of seeing again is so thrilling," she said, "I really can't begin to put it into words. But my joy is such that I want to share it with everyone.

"And who knows? Perhaps somewhere there is another girl who'll discover new hope with the knowledge of what has been done for me."

DEAR GEORGE:

I was sitting in the movie holding hands with my girl. It was an exciting movie and I guess I got confused. My girl was sitting on my left and I ended up holding hands with the girl on my right, whom I had never seen before. She must have been confused too, because she didn't seem to mind. But my girl saw me, got mad and left.

I took the other girl home, after explaining. She said she understood. I like her about 50 times better than the girl I went in the movies with. So everything worked out fine.

HAPPY AS CAN BE.

DEAR HAPPY:

School Lunch Managers in Georgia Are Springing Surprises on Students!

By PATRICIA DEATON
Constitution Food Editor

School lunch managers with the Georgia School Lunch program are springing surprises on the students with the aid of two new food commodities this year.

Early in the fall, the government distributed large quantities of dried dates to many of the schools in Georgia. At the present time, the schools are receiving ripe pitted olives.

Saturday, Shirley Lee Wilson, director of consumer service of a California food company, demonstrated new dishes and easier ways of preparation to 500 school lunch managers attending the sixth annual meeting of the Georgia School Food Service Association.

Staff Photo—Guy Hayes

OLIVES FILL SCHOOL LUNCH LASAGNA
American and Cottage Cheeses Are Protein Rich

In recipes that call for dates, Miss Wilson explained that the dry date pieces may be added directly to the other ingredients. In recipes, however, with low moisture content and short cooking or baking time, it is advisable to moisten dates first.

The demonstrator recommends several ways for achieving a plump date. This can be done by pouring boiling water over dates to cover and allowing them to stand 2-5 minutes before draining. "If you let them stand any longer than this," she continued, "they have a tendency to disintegrate."

To "plump" dates for salads or dessert sauces, cover them for several hours in fruit juice or syrup from canned fruits.

One of the new recipes is a Date Batter Bread in which yeast is an ingredient. The batter, however, is so thin that there is no need for kneading and the bread takes only two hours from start to finish.

"You can top the bread with a Streusel, Brown Sugar or Cheese Topping," explained Shirley.

The recipe makes enough for 48 portions.

DATE BATTER BREAD

1 cup sugar
4 cakes compressed yeast or active dry yeast
1 qt. warm water
2 qts. flour, sifted
4 tsps. salt
1 cup nonfat dry milk
⅔ cup sifted dried whole egg
1 cup melted shortening or butter
1 pt. date pieces

Dissolve sugar and yeast in warm water in small container. Allow yeast to activate about 10 minutes. Sift dry ingredients together. Add melted shortening and sifted dry ingredients to yeast mixture and beat until smooth. Mix in date pieces. Brush top with melted butter. Cover and let rise in warm place until doubled in volume. Cover with Streusel Topping or Cheese. Bake at 375 degrees about 25 to 30 minutes or if baking on a home range, raise the temperature to 400 degrees. Scale 1 lb. 15 oz. into each of 2 greased pans (12x18x2½ inches).

STREUSEL TOPPING

1 pt. sugar
1 cup sifted all-purpose flour
2 tsps. cinnamon
½ cup butter or margarine

Blend all ingredients until crumbly.

While brushing butter on the dough, Shirley advised the audience to purchase a paint brush at least 3 inches wide with dark bristles. "The dark bristles can been seen," she added, "when the brush begins to shed."

There is a simple method for measuring the nutritional value in many of the foods. Ice Box Cookies can be weighed in equal portions and then rolled into equal lengths. This assures each person of equal amounts of protein in each serving.

Some new attachments have been added to the institutional equipment. The power mixer is familiar in most schools but a new tubular device has been added for chopping ingredients such as celery and green peppers.

Celery, cabbage, ripe olives, onions and green peppers can go through the power mixer with the various attachments. A large turkey-size plastic bag can be used for holding the chopped ingredients. Store the slaw in plastic bags for greater convenience and at the same time you are protecting the vitamin C content of the cabbage.

"To prevent discoloration of foods," added Shirley, "use stainless steel blades."

For a quick tempting dessert, bake a plain cake in a loaf pan. Arrange peach halves in rows on the cake and add thickened gelatin and let congeal. Slice in squares and serve.

Lost luggage left Shirley without her accustomed uniform, but she presented the demonstration with enthusiasm and interest.

Just Who Is the Jovial Banker? He's the Working Girl's Friend!

By JUNE WILSON

Everyone knows that man's best friend is his dog, while woman's has been variously described as her diamonds, her sewing machine or her girdle—depending upon the circle she moves in. Times have changed; lately a girl's best friend turns out to be—of all things—her banker!

Bankers have been upgraded the last several years. No more do they glower in heavily appointed offices and stare down the timid, the buck-shy. They have taken up ballpoints, golf and smiling to the extent that of all businessmen, bankers are the halest fellows and the most well-met.

Whatever the percentage reasons for this may be, the fact is that money-changers finally have taken the trouble to learn at least the fringe arts in the science of getting along with people. If it continues, there's an outside chance they may eventually get around to understanding them . . . in spite of themselves.

Much is said in the world of commerce about the need for employes who can "get along with people." Unfortunately for the working lass, there are too many folks who were working before intramural public relations got to be a cult. Many have risen to such heights that no longer do they feel any responsibility for getting along with anyone else. Quite the opposite: they expect 'others' to do all the 'getting along.'

First among the things which make the working climate pleasant is that of being considered a human being, not an "operating unit." Human beings are also emotional beings; they respond positively to sincerity, consistent and strong leadership, simple kindness. Yet many a working girl knows what it is to take a job as it is described to her only to discover that it is really quite routine and that the 'potential' which sold her on it exists in the glowing, deliberate imagination of the man who hired her.

In these times when the need for capable, responsible workers is so much greater than the supply, much of the elevating of mere jobs to the rank of "positions" is premeditated and done for a purpose. There is no question but that this is fraud. The lack of respect and regard for the feelings and native intelligence of other human beings is as dishonest and harmful as the misrepresentation of tangible merchandise, though it rarely has its day in court.

This is the low-water mark. It is about as far as management and its tools can go in failing to get along with people.

Even so, in court or out, not even management wins all the time. People who have been taken in by professional con men may be reluctant to unburden themselves and their pride to the police, but working folk have no such reticence about passing on their experience with firms that deal in razzle-dazzle and which harbor the insincere, and thus the weak, in management posts.

Word gets around. And though there is no sheet of paper where such companies are listed in black and white, all it takes to find out is to inquire among the working population which knows them for what they are, and how they operate.

'Prohibiting Boxing on TV Would Be Tragedy'--Doctor

CEDAR GROVE, N.J., (WNS) Prohibiting boxing or even taking it off television would be a tragedy, according to Dr. Henry Davidson, a psychiatrist here.

Revelations of corruption in boxing by the Kefauver committee in Washington have led to demands that it be abolished, barred from television or severely controlled. And twice in 1960 in England doctors have urged the sport be banned because it "can unquestionably produce punch-drunk imbeciles."

DRAINS AGGRESSIVENESS

But Dr. Davidson says watching boxing, either live or on television, drains aggressiveness out of men.

"If they can't find an outlet by watching boxing, they may take it out on their wives and children," he said. Many spectators identify themselves with one of the contestants.

Dr. Davidson said that the primitive instinct in the male is aggressiveness. A man was supposed to go out and kill the food and protect his family, while his wife stayed home and took care of the young," he explained. "As civilization progresses, the use of this aggression becomes unnecessary. But a man must find an outlet for it.

SAFETY VALUE

"The virtue of spectator sports is that they act as a safety valve for this aggression. Since most men cannot take out their aggressiveness at work, they will take it out at home."

Although he is not a boxing fan himself, he firmly believes that boxing should be kept alive as a spectator sport.

"Women like it too," he said. "Boxing represents to them the essence of masculinity."

"But, if boxing is taken off TV, wives really won't go down for the count if they just switch the channel.

"Westerns and murder stories serve the same purpose as boxing programs for men," Dr. Davidson said. "They release male aggression vicariously."

Veil Back, No Motors

PARIS (WNS) — Grandma's motoring veil is back but it's all woodsy, leafy and flowery now.

Grandma tied on her motoring veil so hat, hair and head all stayed in place. Then came the silk square, worn babushka fashion. Recently, fad has been the huge, filmy, chiffon scarf tied all about the head and throat.

But today they're supplanted by the new scooter-veil of nylon or rayon, adorned with a scattering of artificial leaves and field flowers. It is intended to be tied over the helmet of the feminine motorcyclist to bring a bit of charm and allure to that unbeautiful headpiece.

How to Lose Ring Sales

VIENNA (WNS) — A jewelry store specializing in wedding and engagement rings has replaced its salesgirls with older women and men. The girls were so attractive that male customers kept dating them and forgetting to buy the rings they had come for, explained the management.

Tobe Says

The New Look In Necklaces!

Semi-precious stone necklaces of turquoise, coral, jade, rose quartz, carnelian, amber or topaz beads, real or fake, are capturing the fancy of smart women everywhere. I find the longer single or double strand opera length (about 20 inches) fun to own and fun to wear, for they are a perfect complement to our collarless necklines.

I like their simplicity when worn alone or combined with a strand or two of pearls, especially baroque pearls. Black pearls, cultured or fake, also add a dramatic contrast.

Or you make like one or two strands in the longer lengths (about 26 inches) caught at the side with a jeweled pin or looped low at the center with a smart Florentine gold pin.

Valentines On Dishes Is Fad in Paris

PARIS (WNS) — The new French way to send a message to your love is to say it with dishes. The tenderest love notes are being sent on fine porcelain plates, hand-painted, made to order, design of your choice, three weeks' wait.

Murin of 29 Faubourg St. Honore will make a set of plates for your beau with the imprint of your lips hand-painted on each one—so natural that he'll almost taste your lipstick as he scrapes up his choux-fleur au gratin.

A line of sentimental verse, a bar of music from "our song" or your own Valentine picture are all popular for the new hand-decorated gift plates.

Ballet dancer Giselle Ladoux recently sent her fiance a gift of her own dancing feet painted on a dozen costly service plates. Blonde, pony-tailed starlet Gigi Durand gave her boy friend bowls with locks of her hair painted in them. They say the poor fellow's been losing weight ever since.

LET JOE TELL IT,

HIMSELF—

JOE'S FATHER and mother can remember when, because of his shyness, they would have to come to his rescue during a conversation with strangers and say, "What Joe means is this . . ." But no longer. Today, Joe can speak for himself . . . and does. Not that he is loud or talks too much. Always polite and tactful, he knows when to speak and what he says is usually worth hearing. A change in Joe was apparent within a month after he became a newspaper carrier - salesman. "Since you will need to know how to talk with people the rest of your life, no matter what type of work you do, I think it is important you begin learning," Joe's father told him. "And one of the finest ways to learn is to have your own newspaper route." Joe knows now this was good advice. And he can see how proud his father is every time he says, "Let Joe tell it, himself."

Winter Training

Scouting baseball players is a hazardous profession in which the most skilled hunters miss the target far more frequently than they hit. So many bonus babes failed to mature that the scouts seldom stamp the "can't miss" label on a prospect.

On rare occasions, however, you'll spot an athlete earmarked for greatness. Everyone in the park is aware that he has a brilliant major league career in his future. For example, Eddie Mathews.

Outlar

When Dixie Walker brought the muscular slugger to Poncey in 1950, he told one and all that the Braves had a future star on the Atlanta farm. You only had to watch Mathews swing once to realize what Walker meant.

From the day Mathews broke in with the Crackers, I never talked with a scout who didn't agree that he was destined to become one of the game's top sluggers. In fact, Mathews made an expert out of everyone, scouts, officials, fans and writers.

There was considerable doubt where Mathews would perform on defense. He used his chest more often than his glove while tending third base for the 1950 Atlanta pennant winners. He broke his nose twice. I recall one evening in New Orleans when the Mathews' beak was smashed flat. Marciano couldn't have damaged the nose more than the wayward ground ball.

—Thirty-Seven Homers Every Summer

The Braves who were then in Boston talked about making an outfielder out of Mathews. They later conducted an unsuccessful experiment. Mathews eventually developed into an ordinary fielder, then into an outstanding third baseman. His progress afield stunned most observers who followed him closely in Atlanta in 1950 and at the end of the 1951 campaign. There was never any doubt about his ability to knock baseballs out of any park.

In nine full seasons with the Braves, Mathews now has averaged 37 home runs and almost 100 RBI per season. He has been a stick-out for several years, but he's never donned the super star cloak.

Next year is always the year in baseball, and Mathews is working hard to make it THE year. A Sunday picture layout in the Milwaukee Sentinel showing Mathews working out in the Athletic Club promoted this topic.

Mr. Chuck Dressen, for one, will be elated when he views the photos. Mathews has whittled off 12 pounds in recent weeks. He's already down to a lean 200, plans to check into Bradenton at 195.

Ironically, Mathews experienced his worst season in perhaps the best shape of his big league life. That was in 1958 when he dipped to 185, 31 homers and 77 RBI. I recall talking with Ed at Bradenton that spring. He proudly stroked his slim waist and stated that he had lost 15 pounds in Florida. The stiff diet and overtime work didn't pay off, and Mathews figured he had lost the weight too swiftly. That's why he now watches his weight carefully during the off season.

—A Personal Improvement Program

More enthusiastic boosters of the Mathews Club thought that he might be the slugger to fracture Babe Ruth's record. He's never approached that magic mark, however, for 47 homers in 1953 represent his season's peak. He has smacked 31 or more out of the park for eight straight years. In nine terms, he has powered 338 home runs. Mathews won't be 30 until next October and only Jimmy Foxx stroked as many homers at such an early age.

But Mathews isn't concentrating entirely on home runs. He's vitally interested in boosting his batting chart and surpassing his career high RBI total of 135.

He explained to Lou Chapman of the Sentinel just why he's conducting a personal winter training program.

"By losing weight, I've got to be able to field better. I should leg out more hits, steal more bases and lay down a few more bunts which should help my average," Mathews said. "After all, I can't hit a homer every time I go up to bat."

Unlike most sluggers, Mathews is gifted with speed. Of the current Braves, only Hank Aaron and Al Spangler are considered more fleet of foot.

Customarily a slow starter at the plate, Mathews came winging out of the gate last season. He was clubbing a lilting .331 when he lapsed into a long slump before the All-Star game.

You can't fault a guy who wound up with 39 homers, 124 RBI and a .277 average. Particularly when he is so eager to do better that he starts "spring" training in January.

Bulldogs Face 'Cats Tonight

Simpson Still Below Par, But Starts at Lexington

By TED SIMMONS

As Captain Phil Simpson goes, so goes the Georgia basketball team, and Bulldog coach Red Lawson said Monday Simpson isn't going as well as had been hoped.

That sort of news is disheartening on the eve of an SEC game at Kentucky.

But, full speed or not, Simpson will be in the starting lineup Tuesday night when the Bulldogs invade the Wildcats. And despite the resulting crimp in Georgia's board game, Lawson wasn't waxing pessimistic.

"Phil still isn't well," the Redhead said late Monday afternoon. "We thought he would be, but his leg just isn't right. We've had him in the training room all day, and we'll work on him again tomorrow.

"The other boys are okay, though, except for a few colds. We had a good workout at the Field House this morning. And you know, this team is more relaxed in there than any other I've brought up here.

"That's a real good sign. We're anxious to play.

"That place is enough to shake anybody up, but our boys didn't seem to mind much. They just said it looked like it'd hold a lot of shucks."

Big Simpson, a 6-5 senior forward with plenty of heft, represents about half the Bulldogs' rebounding strength, so it's little wonder Lawson is eyeing his leg-

JOHNSON PICK BY 3-1 OVER JESSE BOWDRY

MIAMI BEACH (UPI)—Muscular Harold Johnson of Philadelphia ruled a 3 to 1 favorite Monday night on the eve of a bout with young knockout artist Jesse Bowdry of St. Louis for National Boxing Association recognition as light heavyweight champion of the world.

The 32-year-old Johnson and his 23-year-old rival for the title taken away from ancient Archie Moore by the NBA both predicted a knockout in their scheduled 15-rounder at Convention Hall Tuesday night. The bout at 10 p.m. EST will not be televised or broadcast.

A sellout crowd of 8,000 was expected to contribute a gate of $60,000, with each fighter receiving 25 per cent. The winner also was in line for a possible world-recognized title fight with Moore, who has been offered a $250,000 guarantee by a group of Miami Beach sportsmen to meet the new NBA champion.

Johnson ruled the favorite to win the title on the experience gained in 15 years in the ring. A boxer and counter puncher, he has won 63 of 71 bouts, 29 by knockouts. Of his eight losses, four were to Moore, over whom he holds one decision, and four came by knockouts.

Bowdry, a bob-and-weave slugger who has been training the past year under the tutelage of triple crown immortal Henry Armstrong, has won 29 of 34 bouts, 23 of them by knockouts. Of his five losses, four were by the kayo route.

Vols Bombard Florida, 83-68; Bucks Rip Indiana, 100-65

KNOXVILLE, Tenn (AP)—Tennessee's starting five went all the way Monday night in beating Florida 83-68 in a Southeastern Conference basketball game.

The Vols, winning their third straight SEC contest, jumped off to a fast start, hitting seven of their eight shots from the floor and controlled the game throughout except for two brief lapses.

Florida got ahead twice for one-point leads but the Vols came storming back and assumed full command with a 65-56 lead with 6:28 left.

All the Vols hit in double figures, Bobby Carter pacing the quintet with 22 points. Eddie Test and John Martin connected for 18 apiece, Dick Fisher got 15, and Gleen Campbell 10.

Lou Merchant and Joe Metzger shared high-scoring honors for Florida with 19 points each. Cliff Luyk, the Gators' 6-7 pivot man, pumped in 16.

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—All-America Jerry Lucas scored 34 points and Larry Siegfried 27 to lead seemingly unbeatable Ohio State to a 100-65 Big Ten basketball victory over Indiana Monday night, the 22nd consecutive win for the top-ranked Buckeyes.

The national champions, posting their 17th triumph this season and their seventh in the Big Ten, were cruising with a 40-point margin at 79-39 with 10 minutes to play.

Indiana came into Monday night's game with a 3-1 conference record and 10-4 for the season. But any hopes the Hoosiers had for an upset were quickly spiked by the hot-shooting Buckeyes who hit on 59.1 per cent of their attempts from the field.

OLEAN, N.Y. (AP)—Second ranked St. Bonaventure withstood a stirring last-ditch rally by Tennessee State Monday night and beat the nation's top-ranked small college basketball team, 104-87.

Sophomore Freddy Crawford's 36 points and a 33-point performance by Tom Stith marked the fast-breaking attack and netted the NCAA tourney-bound Bonnies their fourth century score of the season.

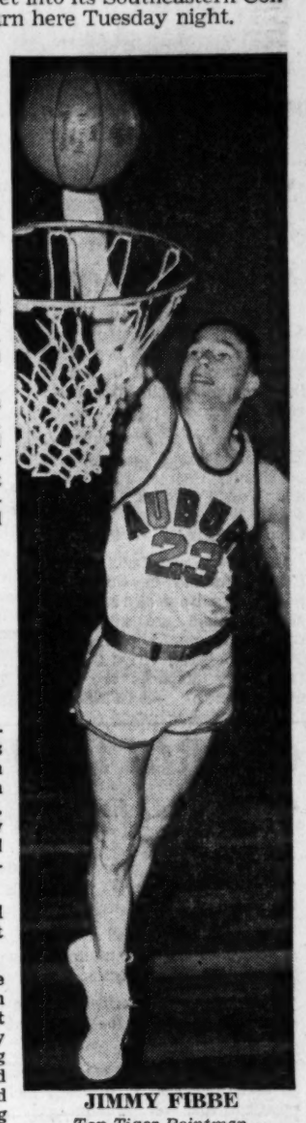
Tech Cagers Host Auburn

Jackets Hoping to Derail Tigers' Coliseum Streak

By AL THOMY

Somewhat more seasoned by the battle, Georgia Tech shoulders a new musket into its Southeastern Conference skirmish with Auburn here Tuesday night.

Tipoff is 8 p.m., following a freshman game between the two schools at 6, and everything counts in SEC standings.



JIMMY FIBBE
Top Tiger Pointman

Not that either team is traveling the golden way to the championship. They are not. Mathematically, they have a chance; realistically, they don't. Tech has lost five in the conference, Auburn four.

Little is at stake but neighborhood honor, but in a Tech-Auburn game that is just a mite short of the conference championship. Battling will be furious, that you can depend upon.

Coach Whack Hyder's Jackets follow a new trend into the game. At long last someone has stepped up to relieve Capt. Roger Kaiser of the scoring burden, and that someone is slender but leather-tough Keith Weekly, a sharp-eyed sophomore from West Virginia.

When Weekly scored 21 points in the narrow victory over Alabama Saturday night, it was the first time this season a Jacket other than Kaiser had broken the 20-point barrier and also the first time Roger had not been team high scorer.

Forward Josh Powell also contributed 14 points and 13 rebounds and proved, he, too, had taken long strides since the season started. Though scoring only 16, Kaiser followed the hot hand by cleverly passing off to Weekly and setting up the scrappy sophomore for his big night.

No doubt Auburn coach Joel Eaves took notice of this shift in the Tech trend.

The Plainsmen bring the same team, minus one, that started in the Coliseum last year and beat the Jackets, 66-59, with a display of soldierly discipline, taking only the percentage shot and never allowing Tech to stand even after the sparring opening minutes.

Jimmy Fibbe, an all-SEC candidate, leads the Plainsmen in for combat. He averages 15.4 points per game, followed by Ray Groover with 14.4, Porter Gilbert with 12.7 and David Vaughn with 11.0. Vaughn is the fellow who held off the Jackets last year with a devastating show of outside accuracy.

The missing face belongs to Henry Hart, 1959-60 captain and the man who could do nothing but beat you. It is said the Tigers miss the graduated captain more than anyone will admit. Eaves has alternated sophomore Bill Tinker with his big men, Layton Johns and Jim Leonard, in the Coach Johnny Griffith made two switches in the Georgia football order Monday, sending left guard Roy Betsill to right guard on the first unit and returning Gary Glover to fullback.

The red-headed Betsill, a senior from College Park, was running on the third team at left guard behind Wally Williamson and Bobby Allen.

However, it was felt that his experience merited a crack at the first team on the other side of the line where end convert Don Tomberlin needs time to adjust.

A fullback originally, Glover was moved to right halfback at the beginning of winter practice. Injury to fullback Wayne Taylor, however, left the ranks bare at the striking post and Glover went back to back up Bill Godfrey and sophomore Len Hauss.

Backfield coach Sterling Dupree disclosed the switches during a talk to the South Fulton Bulldog Club, attended by large gathering.

Dupree had special praise for alternate captain and right halfback Bill McKenny.

"We have known all along McKenny is the most consistent halfback we've got," said Dupree. "He is the easiest boy to coach I have been associated with. You tell him something one time and that's it, you never have to repeat yourself."

Dupree listed the first two Georgia units thusly:

First—Clyde Childers and Ray Clark, ends; Pete Case and Bobby Green, tackles; William-

OWNER REYNOLDS (L), MANAGER RIGNEY (C) AND GM HANEY LOOK FOR ANGELS IN THE ROUGH

Trio Looks Over Bunch of Hopefuls Who Showed Up at a Tryout Camp for the New Los Angeles American League Entry

Angels Seek Agreement; Nats Sign With Pensacola

From Press Dispatches

The Los Angeles Angels trotted out their new uniforms Monday and talked a little about what they intended to put in them.

The publicity man for the new American League ball club started things off by proudly announcing that there are 30,000 stitches in each Angel baseball cap.

To some, this figure seemed fully as impressive as the other major announcement: That there is only one team in the club's farm system.

General Manager Fred Haney explained:

"Right now we've got one triple-A club, Dallas. We might go on from there and make arrangements through Dallas with lower classification clubs.

"We know it's pretty hard to get a working agreement with a club unless you furnish it with players. And right now we don't have many players to furnish."

Haney said it's possible the Angels "will go into an ownership arrangement with some minor league clubs." Or the Angels might get together with another big league club and get a joint working agreement with a minor league team.

AROUND THE CIRCUITS—The new Washington Senators placed the first link in their farm system, signing a working agreement with Pensacola. . . . The Philadelphia Phillies signed right-hander Jim Owens for the 1961 season, bringing to 25 the number of players signed by the National League club. . . . The Kansas City Athletics added three more players to the roster with signed contracts from pitcher Ken Johnson and fielders Andy Carey and Dick Williams. The A's have now signed 24. . . . The State department announced that baseball clubs are free to make their own arrangements to bring Cuban players into the country.

Herb Score sent in his signed contract to the Chicago White Sox to become the 13th player agreeing to terms, with 20 yet to go. . . . The Minnesota Twins of the American League signed second baseman Tommy Thompson of Fresno State College. . . . The New York Yankees received signed pacts from left-hander Danny McDevitt and bonus pitchers Ron Sheldon and Gerry Heintz to bring the roster to 17 players. . . . Frank Howard and Wally Moon returned signed contracts to the Los Angeles Dodgers. . . . Right-hander Carl Willey, whom manager Charlie Dressen hopes to make one of his big four in 1961, returned his signed contract to the Milwaukee Braves.

Vandy Nips Bama, 73-70 To Tie Gators for 2d Place

STATE COLLEGE, Miss. (AP)—Mississippi State, led by Jerry Graves' 28 points, whipped Tulane, 73-59, Monday night to strengthen the Maroons' hold on first place in the Southeastern Conference basketball race.

The victory over Tulane was the 100th for coach James (Babe) McCarthy since he took over at State six years ago. His present record is now 100-42 for a percentage of .704.

Tennessee drubbed Florida, the Maroons' chief threat, 83-68 and left the Gators with a 5-2 SEC record.

The victory was the seventh in the conference for State without a loss and left the overall record at 14-3.

Tulane's leading scorer was sophomore Jim Kerwin who had 15 points. Teammate Jack Ardon had 14 and Wayne Pearl and Richie Berger had 13 each.

State connected on 39.2 of its field goals and 75 per cent of its free throws while Tulane scored 32.3 per cent from the floor and 93.8 from the free throw line.

MANAGERS TALK TEAMS

Detroit Hopes Ride With Rookie Infield

(Eighth in a series of major league team prospects written under the managers' own bylines.)

By BOB SCHEFFING, Detroit Tigers

SCOTTSDALE, Ariz. (AP)—As this is my first season as an American League manager, it will take at least a good part of spring training before I'm able to evaluate the Tigers much less the nine other clubs in our league.

Bob Scheffing

The one spot I'm not concerned about is our outfield. We have one of the best in the business with Rocky Colavito, Al Kaline, Billy Bruton and Charley Maxwell. Bruton, whom we got from the Braves, will add a lot of speed to the club and with him in center we'll be able to move Kaline back to right field where he has always been a standout.

The infield is another thing. We may go with rookies at both second and third. Steve Boros will probably be the third baseman. He had a fine year at Denver last season, hitting .317. Jake Wood, another Denver graduate, and Chuck Cottier will battle it out for the second base job. Cottier came to us in the Bruton deal. He's an exceptional fielder and will stick if he shows us he can hit big league pitching. Chico Fernandez, another fine glove man, is the probable shortstop.

At first base, it'll be between Larry Osborne and Norm Cash. Osborne won the American Association batting championship. Cash is a good hitter who'll have to sharpen up his fielding. He can also play the outfield and we'll play him there if necessary.

The pitching and catching departments are also unsettled at this time. Last year, Don Mossi, Ray Narleski and Paul Foytack all came down with injuries and were lost to the club for considerable periods. If they're back in shape, we'll have no trouble. Jim Bunning and Frank Lary are two experienced right-handers. Bunning can do considerably better than his 11-14 record of last season.

Harry Chiti, Dick Brown and Mike Roarke are the catchers. Brown has a lot of power, but doesn't hit for a high average. Chiti is the most experienced of the three.

From what little I know about the rest of the league, the Yankees and Orioles seem to be the best. The Tigers should be at least as good as any of the others. Once we get straightened away, I hope we'll be better.

GEORGIA OFFICIALS SET ARENA BID DATES

University of Georgia officials have announced tentative dates for the letting of bids on a new coliseum, approved by the Board of Regents two months ago.

Current plans call for construction on the multi-purpose structure to begin sometime around July 1. Completion is expected to take 18 months.

If work goes as scheduled, the Georgia basketball team will be able to move into the 12,000-seat coliseum midway the 1963-64 season.

The cost of the arena has been placed at $2,800,000. It will be used for various purposes, including cattle shows and convocations, and will cover an acre and a half of ground. Some 24 additional acres will be allotted for automobile parking.

Constructed of reinforced concrete, the coliseum will house all Athletic Association offices, training rooms and dressing rooms. Plans call for 10,000 permanent seats. An additional 2,000 will be used for basketball games.

Sophomore quarterback Larry Rakestraw "has the greatest arm" since Zeke Bratkowski, according to Dupree, but needs to gain more accuracy and get experience. "The good thing about Rakestraw," added Dupree, "is that he can run, too."

The Bulldog aide also said sophomore Billy Knowles "is coming fast at right half and plays defense almost as well as he does offense."

Dupree said an over-all lack of depth might hurt the Bulldogs during the opening stages of the 1961 season, "especially when we have to start with a strong team like Alabama."

BULLDOG BITS: J. W. Bullock was named new president of the South Fulton Club, succeeding Jody Brown, who emceed the program. . . . Speakers included Hapeville Mayor Frank Coggin, ex-club president Perry Hudson, Georgia publicist Dan Magill. . . . Special guests were Jim Clay and Doug Phillips, two former Georgia Tech athletes. Huh? Also, ex-Georgia stars Gene Chandler (football) and Don Hartsfield (basketball).

ANNUAL

COLLEGE TALENT SEARCH

Each Spring the nation's industries send out talent scouts to colleges across the country. These men and women invade student unions, libraries, auditoriums and cafeterias to recruit fresh personnel for their companies. The talent hunters are particularly thick on campuses which harbor those learned in science and engineering. Frank Wells of The Constitution tells about "ivory hunting" at Georgia Tech.

HIT-AND-RUN CASES
HIGHEST IN HISTORY

Following a traffic accident, the first reaction is usually to get away quickly. Running away is not the solution, however, although many people do. The hit-and-run traffic cases in the Atlanta area are the highest in history. William O. Smith, Journal staff writer, reports this dangerous situation's causes, police efforts to remedy it, and why it is better not to run after a wreck or accident.

BRER RABBIT WORTHY CHALLENGE FOR HUNTER

By CHARLES ELLIOTT
Constitution Outdoor Columnist

A release from the state of Oklahoma deplores the fact that rabbit hunting in the Sooner state is at an all-time low. This lamentation is rather odd, in view of the fact that Oklahoma does not have a closed rabbit season and the bunnies may be hunted year 'round. The only optimistic note in this report is that the cottontail and his kin may possibly gain a new status in the eyes of the Midwestern gunners, as a desirable sporting animal instead of a pest.

Charles Elliott

Not only will our local rabbit hunters agree, but statistics show that the cottontail is the most popular of all four-legged game animals. This, of course, includes the long-legged swamp rabbit, or "cane cutter," as we know him in these parts.

When you feel the need of a noisy, rowdy rabbit hunt, nothing else will take its place. As a nerve tonic to any guy or gal who feels a kinship with the outdoors, I can recommend a middle Georgia swamp in a mid-winter day, with half a dozen shotgunners upon whom you can depend to shoot at the rabbit and not at you, and a pack of lusty beagles with one or more hot races going.

There is excitement in the race and action in the chase, and you wish you were triplets and could be in three places at one time. But you cannot, so the trick is to be in the right place at the right time. Only from experience will you be able to predict just where the rabbit with a pack at his cotton patch will cross an open field, a roadway, a break in the swamp, where he'll be exposed for a moment or two. Most of the time, you'll get only a quick shot.

Don't undersell the little guy with the white tassel on his tail. He is a trickster in front of the dogs. And why shouldn't he be? The only reason he has been able to survive is because he has learned to outwit his natural enemies of the sedge fields and swamp, which consider fresh rabbit a rare delicacy on a sometimes uncertain and frugal menu. Eternally after him are such creatures as a dozen varieties of hawks and owls, two kinds of foxes, the mink, weasel, wildcat and even some of the larger snakes. Guy Touchstone, at Ichauway, once showed me a rattlesnake he had captured alive. We could feel the contour of an almost fully grown rabbit in his stomach. So outwitting and dodging a pack of beagles and their accompanying hunters is just another day's job with the lowly cottontail and his kith and kin.

I squatted on my heels beside a swamp white oak and watched a rabbit dodge back and forth in one thicket for half an hour while he eluded a pack of half a dozen dogs. I could have shot him at any time, but was too fascinated with the manner in which he ran out of the thorny patch and doubled back on his trail to throw the entire pack in confusion when they lost the scent and began milling around in the swamp. I could imagine that he had done the same thing to one or more of his natural enemies during many months or maybe years when he was using his instincts and reasoning powers for survival.

The rabbit finally caught a glimpse of me and the next time he reached the end of the thicket he kept going with the entire pack in full cry at his heels. After that he simply vanished and we never could determine whether he had run into a burrow, or taken some other thicket in which to worry the pack until they finally lost interest and spread out to look for some more compatible cottontail.

The Southern hunting scene would be much poorer without our field rabbits and cane cutters to furnish us with some mighty fine winter days outdoors. Only a few of the states now fail to recognize him as one of the most popular game animals. It is gratifying that our Cracker gunners properly appreciate this elusive brown sprite of our fields and swamps.

Atlanta Boat Show Shapes Up As Sportsman's Extravaganza

Runs Feb. 24 To March 3

Atlanta's 11th annual Boat and Vacation Show is beginning to look more and more like a big ball of everything for people who dig the outdoors.

Besides exhibitions of 18 lines of boats and five lines of outboard and inboard motors, the show, which runs from Feb. 24 to March 3, will include exhibitions of:

Safety recommendations and laws by the U.S. Coast Guard;

Camping trailers, canvas and aluminum, fixed and lowerable;

Florida Lake lots and resort areas;

All kinds of fishing gear;

Most kinds of hunting gear;

Marina floating agents, and petroleum services; Motorcycles;

Friendly payment financiers; and some more things.

Boat show promoter William H. Brown ran hurriedly over the list of exhibits, and while doing so rather humorously admitted that only one exhibit had been turned down. There was just no way to work electric organs into the general format.

"We've got one or two little spaces left," said Brown, "but they'll be gone pretty soon. We're using every inch of space."

The show, besides its exhibits, will have a stage presentation of varied interest (it includes a child prodigy pianist), emceed by Brown, each night, with matinees on Saturday and Sunday. Show hours are 5 to 11 p.m. on weekdays, 1 to 11 p.m. on Saturdays and 1 to 8 p.m. on Sundays.

Boats to be exhibited span the distance from luxurious inboards, to houseboats, to simple and neat fishing boats, wood, fiberglass and aluminum. Manufacturers are are Aristo-Craft, Arkansas Traveler, Borum, Carter-Craft, Chris-Craft, Century, Clinton, Cruisalong, Crestliner, Cruisers, Inc., Dorsett, Drifter Houseboats, Feather-Craft, Glasspar, Larson, Lyman, Lone-Star, McNeil, Smith, Skimmer, Glasspar, Larson, Lyman, Lone-Star, McNeil, Smith, Skimmer, Thompson and Triumph.

Evinrude, Johnson, Mercury, Scott and Volvo-Penta will exhibit motors. The Volvo-Penta is a half-and-half sort of apparatus, with the drive outside like an outboard, but with an inboard power plant. The first four are outboards.

Most big fishing tackle manufacturers will exhibit their wares, and Brown says that displays of camping trailers will be more numerous than ever before. STODDARD.

REPORT FROM OUTDOORS

Wind Dies Down, Bass Jump For Atlantans at Lake Seminole

By TOM STODDARD

Bass, it is consistently stated, do not bite so well in the winter. They would rahter lie, logy, in the cold water and wait for their supper.

Tom Stoddard

Exceptions are recorded consistently, however, consistently enough to keep die-hard anglers going back despite ice on their line. And just when it begins to look like it's useless, especially after sieges of bad weather, somebody socks it in a nice string, and it's Katie—bar the door.

The latest four somebodies to do so, Harry Mullins, Jerry Wallace, Orval Webb and Julius Warren, returned Sunday from Lake Seminole with a string of 10 bass and a jackfish. Two of the bass weighed 5½ pounds, four around 5 pounds. The jackfish measured around 31 inches.

"It's really set these fishermen on fire," said Warren. "That's not a bad catch for this time of year."

Warren revealed that the bass were caught late in the afternoon, after rather lusty winds had died. Contrary to the way such fish are supposed to act in midwinter, all but one were caught on top-water plugs. One was caught on a cream-color plastic worm.

ELSEWHERE OUTDOORS — Earl Morris, of 2520 Ridgewood Rd. in Atlanta justified his Ft. Lauderdale fishing trip recently with a 175-pound, 5-foot, 6-inch Warsaw Grouper, caught on Capt. Harold Vreeland's charter cruiser Kingfisher V out of Bahia Mar Yacht Basin. . . . One fisherman at Lake Lanier reported a catch of about 30 crappie during last week, and fishing everywhere seems to be on the upswing, if only the weather would stay sensible. Lake Seminole, it appears, is the best spot now . . . quail hunting, with less than three weeks remaining in the season (Feb. 25), is still quite good. . . . State Game and Fish Commissioners will meet Tuesday to set up fishing regulations for 1961-62. . . . The Coast Guard Auxiliary, Flotilla 26, will conduct three classes, March 15, 22 and 29, on boating safety, at the Atlanta Red Cross Building. The public is invited, free of charge.

Grand Junction Names 52 Dogs

GRAND JUNCTION, Tenn. (AP)—A crack field of birddogs, 43 pointers and nine setters, was nominated Monday for the annual running of the National Field Trial championships, starting February 20.

The field for this world series of hunting tests is larger by 19 than last year's, and barring scratches it will take at least 13 "working" days to complete the trials.

Only dogs who have won major stakes are eligible to compete.

SPORTS IN BRIEF

Dempsey, Wife Flee From Fire; Knicks Threaten to Quit NBA

From Press Dispatches

Former heavyweight champion Jack Dempsey, his wife, and dozens of others fled from the Hotel Utah in Salt Lake City Monday, when fire broke out on the ninth floor. No one was injured.

Dempsey, who said getting his wife out was one of the toughest battles of his life, explained: "My wife didn't want to leave the room without first fixing her face. I guess she's like all women."

The Dempseys, who are in Utah on a lecture tour, fled to the lobby to escape smoke, as did about 35 other guests. Five rooms were damaged by the flames.

The hotel is owned by the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints (Mormon).

MISCELLANY—Ned Irish, president of the New York Knickerbockers, has threatened to drop the franchise unless the NBA meets demands concerning the schedule, the player draft and officiating. His main beef is in scheduling, since the Knicks, in last place in their division, have to meet strong Philadelphia and Boston eight more times than do Western Division clubs. . . . Bob Rapport, a young New York advertising man, said that he expects to have a pro football team in Cincinnati for the 1962 season, and the American Football League, through president Bud Adams, said that the Ohio city is being seriously considered for a spot in the league, if it officially expands . . . Former heavyweight champion Ingemar Johansson, preparing for his return bout with champ Floyd Patterson, boxed three rounds with Olympic middle weight champion Cassius Clay, who now weighs 195, and both boxers were impressed. The State Department has agreed to let Ingo's favorite sparring partner, Pekka Kokkonen, come to the U.S.

Storm plagued Bowie Race Track confidently announced that it will reopen Wednesday, but the weather bureau simultaneously predicted more snow. . . .

Dick Savitt of South Orange, N.J., and Orlando Sirola of Italy, two hard-hitting tennis amateurs, were given top seedings for the National Indoor Tennis Championships starting Thursday in New York.

No. 5 position. Each has had his moments.

The Jackets exacted a measure of revenge for last year's double defeat by beating Auburn 48-43, on the Tigers' home lair in overtime earlier in the season. Now they are out to shatter an unbroken Auburn success streak in the Coliseum since 1957.

Hyder goes with his combo that swept to two in a row, meaning center Alan Nass and guard John Hoffman will start with Kaiser, Powell and Weekly.

"Auburn is always tough," says Hyder. "We know they will come prepared for the game."

Eaves said he is apprehensive over the Tigers' mental lag after their defeat at Vanderbilt. "Also, Tech has picked up momentum and confidence from their victories over Kentucky and Alabama," he said.

A packed arena is expected for the neighborhood dogfight.

Cotton Dips At Closing

NEW YORK (AP)—Cotton futures closed 40 cents a bale lower to 10 cents higher.

The market was irregular in early dealings but later weakened as commission house selling and hedging increased. Offerings were attracted to new crop months partly because of a brisk rally in that section late last week.

Memphis advices to a leading spot firm said that mills continued to buy spot cotton for spring shipment but hesitate to buy in any volume until the Department of Agriculture announces the support price for the 1961 cotton crop.

Certificated cotton stocks increased 1,546 bales to a total of 42,316 bales with a further 2,451 bales awaiting certification.

Beans Sprint And Retreat

CHICAGO (AP)—More than half the grain futures contracts reached new high prices for the season on the Board of Trade but failed to hold them although the market closed generally firm.

After opening as much as five cents a bushel higher, soybeans came under fairly steady profit selling then slowly retreated and finished with relatively small gains of 2¼ cents at the extreme. Five of the six contracts hit season peaks before the decline began.

All of the corn, on export demand two of the new crop wheat and three oats deliveries also posted season highs along with soybean oil and three of the soybean meal months.
